SYNOPSIS OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CORPORATION.

SOUTH BOSTON, October 9, 1907.

The annual meeting of the corporation, duly summoned, was held today at the institution, and was called to order by the president, Hon. Francis Henry Appleton, at 3 P.M.

The proceedings of the last meeting were read and approved.

The annual report of the trustees was read, accepted and approved, and ordered to be printed, together with the usual accompanying documents.

The annual report of the treasurer was read, accepted and ordered to be printed.

On motion it was Voted, That the members of the corporation deem it expedient and advisable to refer to the board of trustees the question as to the advisability of removing the institution from South Boston, and if in their opinion such removal is advisable, they be, and hereby are, given full authority to take charge of all questions involved in such removal, including the question of determining the place to which such removal shall be made, the purchasing of the necessary real estate, the construction of new buildings, the matter of securing or arranging for the funds required for said purpose, and any and all questions in connection with such removal of the institution from South Boston.

The corporation then proceeded to ballot for officers for the ensuing year, and the following persons were unanimously elected: —

President. — Hon. Francis Henry Appleton.

Vice-President. — Amory A. Lawrence.

Treasurer. — William Endicott, Jr.

Secretary. — Edward E. Allen.

Trustees. — Francis Henry Appleton, Walter Cabot Baylies, William Leonard Benedict, William Endicott, Charles P. Gardiner, George H. Richards, Richard M. Saltonstall, and S. Lothrop Thorndike.

The following persons were unanimously elected members of the corporation: Edward E. Allen, Mrs. Edward E. Allen and Mrs. William Endicott, Jr.

The meeting then adjourned.

EDWARD E. ALLEN,
Secretary.

PERKINS INSTITUTION AND MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND,
BOSTON, October 9, 1907.

To the Members of the Corporation.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:— We, your board of trustees, report the following statistics of enrolment of pupils and other blind persons in all departments of the institution for the school year just past:—

At the beginning of the year,	316
Admitted,	45
Discharged,	44
Present number,	317

More telling, however, than the mere fact that during the term about 300 pupils shared the benefits of the school should be the other fact that the spirit of the school body remained strong and good, and brought to its close a truly successful year. This statement implies that the traditions of the institution and the impetus for sustained effort which it has gained through all its seventy-six years of efficiency were powerful enough to carry it smoothly over a term that was necessarily trying. The sudden removal by death of its director of more than a quarter of a century and the naturally resulting feeling of disquiet might have seriously shaken an institution body less firmly established than ours. But the staff of assistants which Mr. Anagnos had gathered about him remained true and loyal to his spirit, and bravely did their full duty under the leadership of Mr. Caswell, who had been one of them, and who in his new and difficult position needed all their sympathetic support. That both they and the pupils gave it is a fact which we wish gratefully to record. Mr. Caswell himself rose to the occasion; and in recognition of his services we have passed the following resolution:—

Resolved, That the trustees of the Perkins Institution desire to express to Mr. Almorin O. Caswell their cordial thanks for his faithful and careful management of the institution for the period of nearly a year and a half, including a time of great anxiety and responsibility after the death of the late director, Michael Anagnos, during which time he was acting director. They have good reason to be grateful for his devoted loyalty, tact, patience, industry and painstaking attention to the wishes of the trustees, and they wish him success in the new work which he has undertaken.

The two crayon portraits of Mr. Anagnos which we voted last year to place upon our walls now hang, the one in the parent school at South Boston, the other in the kindergarten at Jamaica Plain. The former of these was presented by the Howe Memorial Club, the latter by ourselves.

Last May occurred the exercises of unveiling a bronze tablet which the alumnae had presented to the institution. It is fixed to the wall in the assembly room of the girls' school, and pictures in relief the face of Mr. Anagnos, who had so often addressed the girls there. It is a beautiful as well as an enduring memorial of affection and esteem.

THE KINDERGARTEN AND LOWER SCHOOL.

At this department, which is at Jamaica Plain, there were in attendance this year the following number of pupils:—

Boys' kindergarten, 35; girls', 30; boys' primary, 29; girls', 31.

The general health report is excellent, though there were two mild cases of diphtheria, which yielded to treatment at the city hospital.

The work of the year went on in the usual delightful manner. Our grounds there afford ample scope for refreshing play out of doors—a vitally necessary recreation from the more formal training which goes on indoors. Some day all schools, of whatever kind, will set aside for active play the necessary large grounds, if only because the gain from playground recreation adds efficiency to the work of the school-room, and hence becomes a paying investment. Moreover, spontaneous play and constitution building are the birthright of every child, and should be a recognized part of his education.

Last spring one of the friends of the kindergarten—and that school has been singularly blest with friends—sent in a sum of money to be used for the pleasure of the children. It was decided to hold a reunion of all the girls who had been there to school.

About 60 came over from South Boston with their teachers, and a most delightful afternoon they had of it. Such reunions should be repeated; their influence makes for sweetness and good fellowship.

Unfortunate, indeed, is the child who must be wholly cut off from his home; we have but few such. Annually on the day when school closes for the Christmas holidays the parents assemble to see their children in entertainment. This occasion is called the "Christmas Carols."

The Ladies' Visiting Committee holds its annual reception in April, on or near Froebel's birthday, when it invites the friends and benefactors of the kindergarten to witness the result of their benefactions. The four houses are thrown open for inspection and the visitors see the children at work; later, all assemble in the hall, to listen to music and addresses. This spring Mrs. Julia Ward Howe paid there a beautiful tribute to Mr. Anagnos, the founder of the kindergarten, and the Rev. Mr. William Harman van Allen spoke feelingly of the character-building influences of its training.

The kindergarten houses lend themselves to receptions and other gatherings. In August last the biennial convention of the American Association of Workers for the Blind held its sessions there, using two of the buildings as dormitories and dining-rooms and another as meeting-room. Thirty-five organizations were represented. We were glad to invite the association to utilize the facilities at Jamaica Plain, which was very little for us to do, considering that the Massachusetts Association for the Blind and others financed and managed the convention. Largely owing to the energy of Mr. Charles F. F. Campbell, agent of the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, and to Mrs. Campbell, the convention was eminently successful.

Among other resolutions passed by the members was the following:—

Resolved, That the American Association of Workers for the Blind desires to place on record its sincere appreciation of the work accomplished for the blind by Michael Anagnos, late director of the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, as founder of the first kindergarten for the blind in America, if not in the world, and as collector of the unique and priceless reference library on blindness, all of which stand as a lasting monument to his memory.

THE UPPER SCHOOL.

At the parent school in South Boston there were present during the year 86 girls and 80 boys. Their health has been good, though when the term was about half over five cases of scarlet fever came to add anxiety to the administration. A further outbreak was feared; and while an isolated house belonging to the institution was hastily converted into a temporary hospital to receive the sick, where, it is a satisfaction to know, all got well again, the school itself broke up, most of the pupils and teachers going away for three weeks, after which the usual routine was resumed.

Two pupils have died: Gabriel Kettlewell, of gastric ulcers, at the Massachusetts General Hospital; and Charles A. Bixby, by drowning while bathing in the ocean during the summer vacation.

One of the distinctions of the Perkins Institution is the fact of its having preserved from the beginning its business correspondence, copies of its own reports and publications, and most copies of the publications of other institutions of similar or allied character. Added to these is a rich store of books, pamphlets, pictures, programs and newspaper clippings pertaining to blindness and the blind, gathered largely by Mr. Anagnos, who has had agents in different parts of the world collecting such things for him. We believe that with the possible exception of the collection of Blindenwesen by Prof. Alexander Mell of Vienna, the whole world has no other equivalent special library on the blind. One of our librarians has been four years cataloging, arranging and adding to this library; and the school has now ready for distribution a printed bibliography of that part of it which is in the English language.

The Howe Memorial Press has not only issued the usual number of embossed books and pieces of music but has continued its kindly policy of giving away to libraries, to schools, and even to individuals occasional books, pamphlets and other embossed material of its own manufacture. The year's productions of this press are —

An Elementary French Grammar,
Whittier's Poems, Vol. I, 3d edition,
Heidi, Vols. I and II, 2d edition,
A Memoir of Michael Anagnos, and 87 pieces of Braille music, the 818 pages of plates for which were prepared by the music department.

Of three specially serviceable works which have been carried on by former pupils of the school for the benefit of their own people, the Mentor, a monthly for the diffusion of knowledge about the blind, published first by the Alumni Association and then by one of them, Mr. J. W. Smith; the enterprise of lending material aid to fellow blind young men struggling to get a start in life, undertaken by the Howe Memorial Club; and the marketing of homemade handiwork of blind women, carried on by the Alumnae Association,—the last two continue. That of the Alumnae Association has grown into quite a business, requiring time and capital to support it. It has abundantly proved its practicability; and the credit for its doing so belongs alike to those who started it and to those who have since helped it along. Within the year this work has been very properly taken over by the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

The workshop for adults, which the institution carries on, in spite of the year's absence of Mr. Howard, its long-time able manager, has pursued its usual course, having given continuous employment at living wages to an average of 18 blind men and women. The impetus previously given to the business of the shop by Mr. Howard, supplemented by the care of his present substitute and of his capable assistants, both at the shop and at the salesroom, has again enabled this rather unique beneficial enterprise to conduct its business satisfactorily. For the past twelve months its blind operatives were paid wages amounting to $6,872.58.

The annual state appropriation of $5,000 for the home instruction of the adult blind people of Massachusetts, a work which this institution continues to conduct, has been expended to date by four trained teachers, all former pupils of our school. It would seem that this home teaching work is particularly adapted to sightless teachers, whose condition, especially if fortified by a period of residence at a school for the blind, enables them to put themselves into closer touch with their often discouraged pupils than is generally possible with home teachers who cannot say, "I have done this; it is possible for you to do it; only try." The work of the home teachers does not confine itself to instruction in touch reading, though this is one of their main opportunities, but it is directed into whatever channels promise the greatest good to the individual — sewing, knitting, crocheting, chair-caning, writing, selling, etc. A never-to-be-forgotten result of the visits is the timely suggestion, encouragement, inspiration, which it is the happy privilege of blindness to share with blindness. Within the year 195 pupils have been taught and 1,879 lessons given to them.

The very interesting instruction and training of our three deaf-blind pupils, Thomas Stringer, Nellie Winitzky and Louis Yott, have been carried on satisfactorily. These students, with the aid and companionship of their special teachers, are accomplishing the regular schoolroom work required of their classmates, and find an added pleasure and incentive in sharing the duties and joys of the other pupils, with whom their relations are always cordial. The institution has now taught eleven of these doubly shut-in young people.

At the November, 1906, meeting of your trustees a resolution was passed inviting Mr. Edward E. Allen to become director. Mr. Allen is no stranger to the Perkins Institution, having in fact once been an instructor here; but his chief work with the blind has been his seventeen years' principalship of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind, and especially the last half of this period, during which it has been his privilege to superintend the removal of that institution from the city of Philadelphia to the suburbs, and to help reconstruct its body and spirit, so as to present to the profession "one of the foremost schools of the world."

The theory on which that school was built and conducted is the theory, first, that the blind, during their formative years at school, must be given every known incentive to normal and vigorous growth of body and soul; that for the former not only must modern, up-to-date, hygienic housing conditions prevail, but also ample overflow space and means for recreation and athletic competition must be supplied; second, that for the latter the whole school body needs to live and move in an environment of sensuous beauty. Nine years ago this was a working theory; today it is such no longer, but is a demonstrated fact. It is because of Mr. Allen's signal success, and also because of his recognized comprehension of the present conditions at the Perkins Institution, and his sympathy with all that is best in them,—in the reconstruction which is bound to come an experienced head will be needed,—it is because of these two things that we directed our call to him; which call, we are gratified to report, he has accepted. He has resigned his delightful charge in Philadelphia, where, with the chief labor done, he had looked forward to many years of serene usefulness among his people. He has resigned all this, partly to come home to New England again, but mainly to embrace the opportunity and privilege accorded him here to be of greatest use to his chosen work.

The Perkins Institution must be reconstructed. Though we believe that our school, both by tradition and example, has been like a beacon by which the ship of the blind in this country has mainly steered, yet we cannot fail to realize that our efficiency as a school must lessen and our light become dim unless we now consent to modernize. The material surroundings of our pupils are, and for many years have been, poor. If the school has done well and if the pupils have largely “made good” this has come in spite of the physical conditions at South Boston. We do not know just how much more effective our school could become if reconstructed; but when, as Mr. Allen has stated, it is realized that reconstruction meant to the Pennsylvania institution a more than doubling of its efficiency, what could we not hope to effect if given equal opportunity? The Perkins Institution must be reconstructed. It must remove to the near suburbs of Boston, carry on its work amidst conditions which help and not hinder economy of operating, and which afford the play of every agency capable of calling forth and training all qualifications tending to equip blind pupils for independent working and living.

The environment which South Boston offers its pupils is alike behind the times and defective. To grow is to outgrow, and stuckfastness is not steadfastness. It is useless longer to hide the fact from ourselves that our charges are not getting all they should get. The main building was originally a hotel; even today a passerby would be surprised to be told that it was a school. Perhaps he might accept the propriety of "Blind Asylum." Indeed, its fortunate name of Perkins Institution has alone saved it from being called by that misleading title. But even though it is not so called, yet it is generally so considered by the public; and this is harmful to the status of its work, which is as much the educating of the public to receive the graduates of the school as it is the training of the pupils themselves for graduation. If the public should not employ the blind how futile the attempt to educate them to efficiency! Visitors today do not leave the school impressed as they should be about the blind. Our pupils cannot appear here at their best because the setting is poor. They cannot do their best work because the conditions for it are wanting. They need ample bed-rooms, sitting-rooms and class-rooms; more space and sunlight; fewer dark passageways; accommodations for the care of the sick; fewer flights of stairs, and some playground where the energies of youth may find harmless vent and not be turned inward, as is too likely to happen with those shut in by physical defect. In order to make our pupils somewhat safe in case of fire we have had to erect, at a cost of $1,600, a Curber-Bender fire-escape, five stories high. The pupils of a school for the blind should be housed in a fire-proof structure, so low as to necessitate no special fire-escape. The education and training of the blind relies for its maximum efficiency upon physical stamina, faith, courage and a good spirit. Their hunger for beauty must be fed. Not to provide for all this is a sin. The Perkins Institution must be reconstructed.

We are aware of this imperative need of our institution. The call to Mr. Allen was the first move towards supplying it. Following the realization of the fact that our school had been for years relieving the Commonwealth to altogether too self-sacrificing an extent — educating its blind children for considerably less than half the actual cost — came our second move; namely, asking the state partly to meet its obligation by coming to the aid of the institution in its present need. We prepared the following resolution to accompany our petition, which we carried to the State House in January last for legislation to provide for an appropriation for the purchase of land and the erection of buildings, which read as follows:—

Resolved, That there be allowed out of the treasury of the Commonwealth to the trustees of the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind the sum of two hundred thousand dollars, for the purchase of land and the erection of buildings for the use of the institution, the same to be paid in four annual installments of fifty thousand dollars each: provided, that no one of such installments shall be paid until a sum equal to such installment shall have been secured for the same purpose from private donations. The treasurer and receiver general of the Commonwealth is hereby authorized and directed to convey to the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind the land which was conveyed to the Commonwealth in compliance with the provisions of chapter seventy-one of the resolves of the year eighteen hundred and sixty-nine.

There were three hearings on this bill, but, though the matter excited public interest and was pretty well ventilated, it nevertheless failed of favorable action. We may wish to bring it forward again this winter, and if we do we hope to press it to a successful issue. But even if we succeed a heavy burden lies upon us to raise equivalent funds with which to carry out our design of removal from South Boston. Your interest and utmost efforts are invoked, not only to sustain us in our position but even to work with us for the raising of funds from private contributors. A large sum will be required, but the need is great and our duty plain. The public has already nobly sustained that department of our work known as the Kindergarten for the Blind; and while we should regret to note any diminution of interest there, we would beg to state that now it is the Perkins Institution proper which is cramped for funds, and that our present hope is that the friends of the education of the blind will help us with legacies unrestricted in application. Then we trustees can use them where there is greatest need. The Perkins Institution must be reconstructed.

DEATH OF MEMBERS OF THE CORPORATION.

The list of corporate members who have died since the date of our last report is given as follows:—

Mrs. ELIZABETH CARY AGASSIZ, the widow of Prof. Louis Agassiz, was a granddaughter of the late Thomas Handasyd Perkins, whose benefactions to this institution gave it his name. She was a member of the Board of Lady Visitors at the kindergarten, appointed to that office by the trustees soon after its organization, and she established a branch of the society at Cambridge, for the purpose of securing funds for current expenses, wrote and circulated appeals, and served as treasurer until failing health compelled her to resign the work. Mrs. JOSEPH S. CABOT; Dr. CHARLES F. FOLSOM; Col. WILLIAM GODDARD of Providence, R. I., chancellor of Brown University; EDWIN BRADBURY HASKELL, editor-in-chief of the Boston Herald; Hon. ROCKWOOD HOAR of Worcester; Mrs. EMILY A. JACKSON, widow of Dr. J. B. S. Jackson; CHARLES MERRIAM; FREDERICK R. SEARS; THOMAS F. TEMPLE, a former trustee of this institution, appointed by the state; JOSEPH HOWE WALES; and THOMAS WIGLESWORTH.

LEGACIES TO THE INSTITUTION.

The following bequests have been paid to our treasurer by the respective executors of the wills of those friends who have thus remembered the needs of our school:—

For the parent institution:—

From the estate of WILLIAM T. BOLTON, . . .	$555 22
From the estate of THOMAS GAFFIELD (in part), .	2,000 00
From the estate of CHARLES H. HAYDEN (additional),	500 00

THE RECONSTRUCTION OF THE PERKINS INSTITUTION A PRESSING NEED.¹

I have been asked to appear here today in order that I may lay before you the results of an extended association with the blind; to explain what I consider to be the handicap under which they labor; and to show how this handicap may best be minimized if not removed.

It was my fortune to go immediately from college into what is in some respects the most remarkable school for the blind in the world — the Royal Normal College for the Blind, London, England. I was teacher there for three years and taught almost everything from swimming and hammer-throwing to English literature and Latin. I wish to make it plain that my first experience with the blind was practical and that my subsequent study of the writings of Dr. Howe and others upon the education of the blind was pursued in the light of actual knowledge. The plan of Dr. Campbell, the principal of the Royal Normal College, was to make physical vitality the foundation of all his training. Upon the broad basis of an effective body he was able to build a superstructure of soul and spirit that resulted in the life efficiency of about eight out of every ten of the pupils. Gentlemen, this is a remarkable showing.

¹ Being in substance the remarks of Edward E. Allen, then Principal of the Pennsylvania School for the Blind, at a public hearing before a legislative committee, held at the State House, Boston, February 28, 1907.

My association with Dr. Campbell was for many years my most fruitful experience in observing the triumphant victory of the spirit over a seemingly insuperable handicap. From London I came to Boston and taught at the Perkins Institution, remaining two years. This school is a noble one, with a history of which Massachusetts is justly proud. It can point to single cases of achievement unmatched elsewhere. The soul of Dr. Howe still pervades the institution, and the loyalty of its graduates to their alma mater is beautiful. But this spirit, though more kindly than the spirit bred of Royal Normal College rigors, is at the same time less potent for life efficiency. Earnest and devoted as the Perkins teachers may be, their opportunities for developing in their pupils the physical vigor that is the basis of everything have become so limited that the pupils as a whole are unable to rise to the intellectual heights of which they are potentially capable.

Such was my comment upon the Perkins Institution when in 1890 I was called away to superintend the destinies of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind. This school was located in the city of Philadelphia, with as large a pupilage as the Perkins then had; but it was still less favorably situated. Its playgrounds were as limited and as bare; its buildings even darker and more dreary and unrelieved by material brightness of any kind. People said: "The pupils cannot see; of what particular utility then would it be to spend money cutting additional windows and painting the interior walls? Whitewash is good enough; moreover it is hygienic. The place was not intended for the teachers." True, it was not made for those of us who had eyes to see, and most of the staff had eyes. The teachers were good. The instruction was excellent: it was the one thing of which I was proud. But instruction is not education, as we soon learned. The routine work was too humdrum. Vitalizing enthusiasm was lacking. Most pupils left school without graduating. When visitors came we apologized for what they saw. The pupils perceived our apologetic attitude and responded to it. "As is the teacher so is the school." That school did not fulfil its mission.

Knowing well, as I did, what satisfactory results are obtainable from blind pupils under auspicious influences, I bombarded my Board of Managers with letters and reports urging reconstruction. The fear of fire was a contributing cause of removal. We finally moved to the immediate suburbs of Philadelphia, a section called Overbrook. There modern, fireproof, up-to-date buildings were put up — structures which in themselves were bright and beautiful, and the setting was in keeping. My experience had led me to realize that the blind are not only alive to their surroundings but respond to them; also that their teachers respond to them; that the matter of environment then is a basic one in the education of the blind to which too much attention and study cannot be paid. Inheritance and environment are the two factors in life. Our pupils' inheritance we cannot change. It is often of the poorest; hence, the environment must be good enough to balance; in fact, it can hardly be too good. We placed our buildings in an area of twenty-six acres, a large part of which was laid out in playgrounds, athletic field, orchard and grove. The structures themselves surrounded two large hollow squares or courts, lined with covered cloister walks and planted with beautiful gardens — in a word, the architecture was that of the Spanish mission with cloisters and formal patios. And kept up as these gardens were they were a delight alike to the eye that sees and to the soul that perceives. The cloisters formed the main arteries of the institution. They were open to fresh air and sunlight but not to rain and snow; and, being very large, furnished ample exercise ground evenings and in bad weather. It was all a truly beneficent expansion.

The experience which followed was an illuminating one. The very first year we were at Overbrook we graduated a class with full diploma, and each year since then has had its own class. Not only do the pupils wish to stay to graduate but they have caught the meaning of graduation. Naturally, under country conditions of sun and air they improved remarkably in physical wellbeing; and with this came the hopefulness so necessary to efficiency. This attitude of mind manifested itself in better school work, better music production, better physical prowess. The same material in pupils, the same teachers and principal — what else made the transformation but the changed environment? The school chorus learned and gave well the great oratorios of Handel and Haydn; the athletic societies held field meets among themselves and with the boys of other schools. They jumped, put the shot, threw the hammer and ran one-hundred-yard dashes; and they made good records withal.

These things showed that the school had at last begun to fulfil its purpose. The teachers had come to believe in the taught, and the taught in themselves. Results everywhere were good, because there was everywhere a stimulated interest. The achievements of Overbrook attracted the attention of other schools for the blind. Their superintendents visited us. Two institutions, having adopted our plans, have recently reconstructed similarly in a country location. Within four years six schools for the blind have obtained teachers from among our graduates. This last statement is big with significance; for no school in the world has recently placed so many of its graduates as instructors in schools for the blind; no other school can point to boom so magnificent. I cannot find that in all the previous seventy years of its history the Pennsylvania Institution had graduated with school diploma so many pupils or sent so many to teach in other schools for the blind as it has since. In the past seven years it has graduated fifty-six. Ten of these are still studying; but of the rest, thirty-six, who have gone out into the world, have already made good and may be called successful and independent. Here is 78% of graduate efficiency. I have not told you of the precise efficiency of the same school before reconstruction. No exact record has been kept of former pupils; but there still lives at the school an ancient pupil of phenomenal memory. Going over our accession books with him, I computed that about $\frac{1}{3}$ of all former pupils had made good, $\frac{2}{3}$ had failed to do so. Since our reconstruction these figures have been reversed.

Here is to my mind a proof of tremendous and inspiring possibilities in the education of the blind. Experience has thus shown me how the tragedy of incompetence may be converted into the joy of efficiency.

Let us analyze the shaping elements. The tragedy of blindness is not the inability to see; it is the dread of dependence, of poverty and want and the pauper's grave. Childhood looks not so far ahead; but young blind men and women, however cheerful they may generally appear, too often yield to periods of depression. It is but natural the outlook should be dark and foreboding. The wonder is this is so often and so readily relieved. Blindness borrows trouble; its victims are overcome by self pity. Too frequently there follows a sinking of the fires of life, a flagging of energy resulting in idleness, morbidity and ennui. Any people so oppressed in mind tend to deteriorate in every way — even morally. One might as well try to reform a hardened street beggar as to hope to revivify the blind long crushed by their calamity. The adult blind as a class are like invalids; but in youth “hope springs eternal;” only this hope needs to be awakened early and kept alive and fed by mental and physical coöperation. The physical is largely influenced by the material environment but the mental also by the personal environment, which in school days the teachers supply. Victor Hugo said: “There is no such thing as blindness where we have faith.” Teachers of the blind then must believe in their pupils: this is of primary importance. To instruct the blind is easy; to educate them, difficult. Their instructors must therefore be educators, broad, wise and far seeing. I have stated that the pupil is dependent upon the teacher; I should add that the teacher is dependent for his enthusiasm upon the active returns from his pupils. They are mutually dependent. The environment of both must be stimulative. It must supply every known agency to encourage efficiency. The influence of such association for the enrichment of the intellect and the liberation of the spirit may be prodigious. One achievement begets another, until, indeed, a premium has been put on efficiency. Some one has well said: “In its richer sense education is as much a matter of atmosphere as of definite instruction; and an enthusiasm for any kind of knowledge shared by a group of undergraduates is often more contagious and fruitful for educational purposes than the most thorough training in the class room and the laboratory.” At the schools for the blind in London, Louisville, Overbrook, I have seen the free courageous exuberant spirit of scholarship arise as the result of success on the playground and the athletic field. The work of successfully educating the blind has got to be founded upon the playground — not a distant field to which the pupils are carried periodically and set to work playing, but a playground with facilities and appliances for outdoor sport alongside the school, where the pupils can indulge in the many spontaneous games youth lives and thrives on. If, therefore, we would make our blind pupils like other boys and girls we must provide opportunities for jumping, playing tag, climbing, sliding, wrestling, rowing, swimming, coasting, skating and many other sports in which, under proper conditions, the blind can indulge with all the zest and benefit of those who see.

The Perkins Institution at South Boston does not and cannot provide opportunities such as these; and in this fact lies the chief necessity for its expansion in the suburbs. But cramped out-of-door spaces are by no means the only drawbacks to the South Boston situation. The old hotel building which harbors the pupils never has been and never can be well adapted to boarding school purposes. Every boarding school for adolescent boys and girls should lend itself to their complete supervision; for the less fully the pupils can work off their stimulated energies through wholesome play the more surely will these energies turn inward and seek outlet in vicious gratification. This is no mere generalization of fancy: I lived two years in the Perkins Institution and enough years in other similar schools to realize how serious a matter is this to which I refer.

Another lack of the Perkins Institution is an adequate infirmary. The blind are naturally less vigorous than other people, have less vitality: this fact is readily observed or it can be proved by physical measurements. The need of accommodations for their care when sick is imperative. A residential school like this cannot afford not to have in intimate connection a proper infirmary of its own and, in isolation, even a small contagious hospital. Such conveniences may be expensive but they are economical in the end.

Finally, what could the management expect to happen in case of fire? Perhaps you will retort that the same uncomfortable query might be made of new buildings in the country. Not at all; if they are properly constructed and only two stories high, as the Overbrook buildings are and as all such boarding schools should be. It was a case of actual fire in the old city home of the Pennsylvania school which finally determined the managers to reconstruct without further delay.

In conclusion, then, the main building of the Perkins Institution is but an abandoned hotel turned over, during their formative years, to the blind youth of New England,—boys and girls whose defect is so serious a one that it can be offset or overcome only by many favorable agencies acting with cumulative force. If the place once had the merit of beauty of situation and of ample grounds, the growth of South Boston has destroyed both of these. Too much of the interior of the school is barrack-like and uninviting. On pleasant half holidays the pupils must be allowed to go out walking in South Boston much more than is good, because there are no attractive sitting rooms for them. During bad weather, holidays, especially Sunday afternoons, are, as a pupil once said to me, “long dreary deserts in our lives.” Though they have plenty of books and pianos they do not wish to read and practise all the time, and their other resources are there limited. Even the teachers need to go away continually for recreation and inspiration. Visitors are not regularly taken to the class rooms but to an assembly hall where the pupils may be exhibited to the best advantage. The pupils feel and take on the color of such surroundings and are proportionately depressed. The blind think too much and act too little. The conditions of the Perkins Institution not only afford scant opportunity for correcting the introspective habit but rather invite the indulgence of it. Therefore, its atmosphere, like that of the unreconstructed Philadelphia institution, is not what it ought to be. The school cannot and does not impress enough of its pupils with adequate hope of life efficiency, which hope is the rock on which the blind must build their house. Hopefulness is a state of mind dependent on physical vitality. Unless the institution imparts such vitality it imparts nothing—its work is useless.

The pressing need is, then, reconstruction. Other states and other countries have within recent years moved their schools for the blind out into the suburbs of a large city and put up there modern, well arranged buildings with ample playgrounds. The good old Perkins Institution, which was pioneer among our schools and the one for many years to which others looked for guidance, should again step ahead and build the ideal plant. On account of the prestige of this school such an institution here would be a boon to the cause of the education of the blind, not only in New England but throughout the whole country.

PERMANENT FUND FOR THOMAS STRINGER.

[This fund is being raised with the distinct understanding that it is to be placed under the control and care of the trustees of the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, and that only the net income is to be given to Tom so long as he is not provided for in any other way, and is unable to earn his living, the principal remaining intact forever. It is further understood, that, at his death or when he ceases to be in need of this assistance, the income of this fund is to be applied to the support and education of some child who is both blind and deaf and for whom there is no provision made either by the state or by private individuals.]

SYNOPSIS OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CORPORATION.

SOUTH BOSTON, October 14, 1908.

The annual meeting of the corporation, duly summoned, was held today at the institution, and was called to order by the president, Hon. Francis Henry Appleton, at 3 P.M.

The proceedings of the last meeting were read and approved.

The annual report of the trustees was read, accepted and approved, and ordered to be printed, together with the usual accompanying documents.

The annual report of the treasurer was read, accepted and ordered to be printed.

Mr. William Endicott reported in behalf of the Board of Trustees that the Trustees, after due consideration, had determined that the accommodations at South Boston for the purposes of the Institution were entirely inadequate for the present and future purposes of the Institution, and had further determined that it was desirable for the purposes of economy and for other reasons that the two branches of the Institution should ultimately be located together on some tract of land in the vicinity of Boston of sufficient area to accommodate the present and future purposes of both branches of the Institution, and with this in mind, the Trustees were negotiating for the purchase of a tract of land in Watertown, formerly belonging to the Estate of Josiah Stickney, containing about 34 acres.

It was further reported that although the Trustees under the by-laws are advised that they have ample and full authority to proceed in completing the purchase and developing the property for the purposes of the Institution, they deem it advisable that the matter should be reported upon to the Corporation, and its doings in the matter ratified and approved, and

On motion it was Voted: that the acts and doings of the Trustees looking to the acquisition and purchase of the said property be and hereby are ratified and approved, and that said Trustees be and hereby are authorized to do all acts and things requisite and necessary in completing the purchase of said property and developing the same for the purposes of the Institution, and in that connection to proceed from time to time in the matter of constructing such buildings as they may determine requisite and necessary and to do all other matters and things in connection with the removal of the Institution from South Boston at such times and in such manner as they deem to be for the best interests of the Institution.

Further voted: that in case for any reason the Trustees are not able to acquire and purchase the said Stickney estate, that they be and hereby are fully authorized to proceed in the acquisition of such other property as they may believe to be adapted for the said purposes of the Institution.

Mr. F. B. Sanborn offered two amendments to the foregoing resolutions, which were referred to the Trustees with full power.

The corporation then proceeded to ballot for officers for the ensuing year, and the following persons were unanimously elected: —

President. — Hon. Francis Henry Appleton.

Vice-President. — Amory A. Lawrence.

Treasurer. — William Endicott, Jr.

Secretary. — Edward E. Allen.

Trustees. — Francis Henry Appleton, Walter Cabot Baylies, William Endicott, James A. Lowell, Mrs. James J. Putnam, George H. Richards, Richard M. Saltonstall, and S. Lothrop Thorndike.

The following persons were unanimously elected members of the corporation: Dr. Henry K. Oliver, Miss Jennie M. Colby, Mrs. Mary Tappan Appleton, Mrs. Marian Cabot Putnam, Ezra R. Thayer and Mrs. Mary Duncan Fiske.

The meeting then adjourned.

EDWARD E. ALLEN,

Secretary.

PERKINS INSTITUTION AND MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND,
BOSTON, October 14, 1908.

To the Members of the Corporation.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—As the chief burden of last year's report was the need of reconstruction, it is fitting to begin this year's by saying that the first steps toward rebuilding have been taken. After visiting a score of sites, we began negotiations last spring for a piece of land of about 34 acres on an elevation along the Charles River in Watertown. While papers have not actually been passed, it is expected that they soon will be. The property was once a beautiful estate, and it still bears many fine old trees. It is within six miles of the State House, readily approachable by train and trolley, and is altogether a most desirable site for us.

While we may not be able to reconstruct externally for several years, we have made a few internal changes in our old buildings worthy of mention. Some money has been spent in the girls' cottages for painting and refurnishing, a long delayed and much needed improvement. As the girls had no cottage sitting rooms, the dining rooms have been made into living rooms, to be so used except at meal times. The long, covered gallery bounding the girls' green has had a side removed so that it now opens upon the green like a section of a cloister walk. Thus has the gallery been restored to use. The institution offices are now at the front of the main building, near the entrance and so accessible to all.

New leadership always means change of some kind, if only of emphasis, and a somewhat greater emphasis is being placed by Mr. Allen on matters of school hygiene. Following on modern lines, we begin the knowledge of our pupils and their needs by ascertaining their physical condition. Our physicians last year cheerfully gave the time needed for careful examination and measurements of each pupil, and their findings we have recorded on cards prepared for the purpose. Attending dentists, a pediatrician and an assistant oculist were appointed; adjustable desks and chairs were provided in certain classrooms. Adequate shower baths were introduced for the boys. Every boy not excused by the physician begins the day by going through a needle bath of about 70° temperature, immediately after getting up. This is simply the revival of an old custom of morning bathing at the institution. A similar large shower was also installed near the gymnasium, so that part of the gymnasium exercise is showering afterwards. Thus each boy has a cool shower every morning and a warm one four times a week.

All the gymnasium exercises for both girls and boys, that can properly be held in the open air, are held there. Our boys took part in May in an interscholastic contest with twelve other schools for the blind, each on its own grounds, we holding our meet at the kindergarten. Their time and opportunity for practice had been so limited here that they were at a great disadvantage, but while they did not win in any event they made creditable showing.

The added spirits induced by showering and competitive exercises need an outlet. This is provided for by the annexation of out of doors, alike at South Boston and Jamaica Plain, in both which places we have installed play apparatus that is in constant use by each school till we are the envy of the street boys (the most popular pieces just now are the two great plank swings, capable of holding ten boys or girls at a time); and by having teachers more and more with pupils in free time to lead in sports and play. This last innovation is capable of larger extension, and teachers will be engaged with the understanding that this is as much a part of their duties as classroom instruction. Somewhat better hygienic conditions and somewhat more time spent in play and voluntary exercise add zest to work in its turn. Pupils are assigned fewer hours in school and are expected to accomplish the same amount of work as formerly.

Fewer pupils are now studying music than were before, and those who are pursuing it are doing so with increased economy to themselves and the school. The music department of the whole institution has been reorganized under a single head, several instructors who resigned will not be replaced, a mixed chorus will absorb some of the excessive effort heretofore given to a full orchestra, and much less attention will be paid to the small instruments. All the music any pupil ought to take will be fostered in him, but the effort to force it into him or out of him will cease. Definite normal instruction for our advanced piano pupils with private pupils of their own — children with sight — has begun and will be insisted on. Our music department has not offered these opportunities within recent years; and, when we consider that practically all the graduates of such a school as ours, who follow music as a livelihood, will teach rather than perform, it appears that the demands of the orchestra, which displaced several at least equally important lines of effort, should no longer be permitted to dominate.

A school for the blind does not have the time for every pursuit possible to its pupils. Thus, theoretical chemistry, a delightful study, has this year given way to a course in business principles: business may not become the calling of all our pupils, though it does of many, but so much of success in life depends upon business habits and methods that courses having for their end the understanding and practice of these qualities have been lately recommended to all our schools by no less a body than the American Association of Workers for the Blind.

Apropos of good business, we are now pushing new industries into our manual department, this past year the rush-bottoming of chairs. The boys and their teacher have made a lot of checker boards and men. In their shop there has been other interesting work done, such as the making up of strong piazza chairs, bought in the knocked-down condition, and seating and backing them with splint; the result being pieces of furniture for the pupils' own sitting rooms. Will not the boys feel proprietorship in such of their arts and crafts work?

To stimulate habits of thrift the boys have been encouraged to start bank accounts with money earned at recaning chairs during odd hours, and twenty have already made deposits. All young people need capital when starting out in life; how much better to possess a little than to borrow.

Our school and its work are now so well known in this community it would seem as though there were a better and more economical way of keeping up this interest than through the weekly exhibitions once so necessary. These will be replaced by having the work of teacher and pupil so good that it may be always on exhibition. Visitors truly interested will be shown through the school and house at all times.

Instead of the usual miscellaneous exhibition and concert exercises, held in a large city auditorium, early in June, we gave in June a concert in Jordan Hall and on the last day of school had closing exercises at the institution. Nine boys and one girl then received diplomas.

Our three deaf-blind pupils have been here as last year. Thomas Stringer's future — he is now twenty-two years old — is something of a problem. The other two are still young and progressing in an interesting way, especially little Louis Yott whose progress in the acquisition of language presents a study in development that would attract uncommon attention were it new at this school.

We wish to commend the achievements of the department of piano tuning, the library and the printing office, the workshop for adults, and the work of teaching the adult blind in their homes. The library has not only added 85 titles to its special collection of literature on the blind but nearly 1000 embossed books, chiefly text books in Braille. It has circulated 2443 books in the school for voluntary reading and increased its outside circulation this year to 3060. For at least fifteen years our books have been borrowed in increasing numbers by blind people and read at their homes. Since 1904, when the free mailing concession went into effect, this outside circulation has consumed the greater part of the time of one librarian.

Many of these additions are the production of our own Howe Memorial Press whose energies this year have been devoted, first, to new equipment for book and pamphlet production in Braille, especially a stereotype-maker, having power attachment, and a wire stitching machine; and second, to the issuing of much new music, paper maps and a lot of select short stories for general reading. These latter appear in convenient pamphlet form in editions of 100; over 400 of them went into the homes of our outside readers last summer. The Howe Memorial Press will undertake more and more to serve as a supply house for appliances and reading needed by the blind of any age or station.

The workshop for adults has almost held its own during this year of general business depression, in spite of the fact that its running expenses have increased. It has new management which has been allowed and even urged to enlarge the business; the resulting benefit naturally being that the eighteen blind workers this year have earned on an average $400 each, which is a little more than usual. In asking the public to continue sending us their mattresses and chairs for repair and to buy their new mattresses of us, we are not seeking charity for our people; rather are we promising our patrons the same reliable work that we have always given them and at as reasonable a rate as they can secure elsewhere.

The four teachers who travel about to instruct and encourage the adult blind at their homes report a very successful year. The Director has studied this field of work as well as he has had time; in consequence it has been modified and distinctly improved in the direction of economy of the time and money spent on travel. It is a much needed work, and we are greatly interested in it; but whether it can be best done under our direction or that of the Mass. Commission for the Blind is a question. The number of blind persons reached in this way this year is 216.

Realizing as we do more and more each year that an institution for the blind cannot justly limit its scope to the youth who happen to attend it as pupils we are glad to coöperate with any and every agency in behalf of the blind which will coöperate with us; and we are gratified that our Director so conceives his own mission and that he has been able to work harmoniously with all such agencies. We must regard it as a privilege to be able to do this sort of thing; for whatever makes for the interest of a single blind child or man or woman is alike our privilege and our duty to help on. Not for this reason only but because no such school can afford not to stand back of its worthy graduates do we offer to our present pupils this encouragement of hope for the future.

There seems no way so effective for the principal of a large school to get in touch with his charges as through sympathetic morning talks to the assembled household after chapel. In these he can acquaint them with a multitude of events, particularly events as they occur in the world of the blind, always a matter of peculiar interest with them. Mr. Allen is particular not to utilize this hour of inspiration and good feeling for discipline and correction. Another time is chosen for that office when it is necessary.

There are two ways of carrying on an institution for the blind, the impersonal and the personal. By the impersonal, as may be seen in some large institutions, the machinery may be splendidly run and finished products of a good kind turned out. Here, however, our Director prefers the personal method; the getting in touch with the individual and keeping in touch, being accessible at reasonable hours, not fenced off, being in loco parentis in fact and not in name only. When a superintendent assumes this attitude he gets a warm response which does away with any thought he may once have harbored that his pupils are unappreciative and ungrateful. The result, too, upon the pupils is of a higher, finer order. Mr. Allen believes he owes much of the success he had in Overbrook to this method of administration.

Our school has large graduate associations. These can furnish the Director with real help. They have just responded splendidly, both as organizations and as individuals, to a request to send in personal data which the office has already entered upon special record cards.

We are gratified to be able to state that periodicals conducted in the interests of the blind have lately appeared in our country, all of them filling a want which has long been urgent. These are The Outlook for the Blind, a quarterly printed in common type, The Matilda Ziegler Magazine, The Christian Record, monthlies in embossed type, and The Milwaukee Weekly Times, also in embossed type.

At the close of the school year in June six teachers and the matron of the main building at South Boston voluntarily left our employ. All of these had given us years of faithful and efficient service, Mrs. Carlton, the matron, fourteen such years. The Perkins Institution has been fortunate in having good matrons.

We presented last year, as we have said, the urgent need which the Perkins Institution has to undergo radical reconstruction in the suburbs, and we called attention to our need of money for this purpose. We then supposed that during the year we might seek financial assistance from the state, as was done the previous year. But the times forbade such a request. However, we have acquired some little funds for the rebuilding. Upon our presenting the needs of the institution to the usual donors to its kindergarten department we induced these friends of the blind to make their contributions without restriction. $5950.50 have come in, and a few large donors have removed restrictions from sums given in other years and not already consumed in running expenses. Thus have been added $9500. The late George F. Parkman has bequeathed to the Perkins Institution an amount stated to be $50,000, and the recently ascertained residue from the J. Putnam Bradlee estate has added to the funds of the institution $143,000 in cash, together with some stocks and bonds, and an equal sum to its kindergarten. Other bequests and donations of the kind are urgently needed before we can be free to begin the actual preparations for rebuilding. We cannot doubt that our friends who learn of our needs will speedily come to our aid in the way indicated, for as the Perkins Institution has been a source of pride to our community in the past so must it continue to be always.

The appeal which was sent out along with the report to all annual contributors to the kindergarten and to members of the Ladies' Auxiliary Society is here given.

PERKINS INSTITUTION AND MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

SOUTH BOSTON, 1908.

The great work of Dr. Howe in the education of the blind has been nobly supplemented by the establishment of the kindergarten for younger children upon a liberal basis by Mr. Anagnos. So great was the zeal of Mr. Anagnos, ably seconded by the help of the Ladies' Auxiliary, that the gifts and legacies to the Perkins Institution secured by them have of late years been mostly restricted to the use of the kindergarten. By the receipt of a large legacy last autumn the kindergarten is now endowed for all needs of the near future.

The upper school at South Boston, on the contrary, is greatly in need of funds. It is barely able to make both ends meet. It is overcrowded, without room for playgrounds, inconvenient for administration, incapable of adaptation to the standard of modern schools for the blind, hampered by a high building with many stairs and not fire-proof. Dr. Howe contemplated its removal to the country and actually inspected various sites with that object in view. It is the unanimous opinion of the Trustees that it must be moved to better quarters as soon as possible.

Economy and efficiency of management will ultimately necessitate the bringing together of both departments. Any such change of the kindergarten, when found necessary, can be made with funds now in hand.

Under these circumstances the Trustees, deeply grateful for your past aid to the kindergarten, feel that they have no right to ask for further gifts at the present time to that department; but the very children who have enjoyed modern advantages there, pass, while still of tender years, to the higher school at South Boston, where there is now need as urgent as that which stirred Mr. Anagnos twenty-one years ago to devote his untiring energies to the little children.

We earnestly appeal to you, therefore, to continue your assistance to these children after their promotion by sending your gift, and urging others to do the same, to the corporation without restrictions of any sort, so that it may be applied where there is the greatest need and where it will do the most good. The expenses of the proposed development will be large and we shall be very grateful for donations large or small.

This appeal is made after consultation with the Ladies' Visiting Committee to the kindergarten and with their hearty approval.

For the Trustees,

EDWARD E. ALLEN,

Secretary.

For the Ladies' Visiting Committee to the Kindergarten,

Mrs. JOHN CHIPMAN GRAY,

President.

I trust that this appeal will meet with a prompt and generous response from the friends of the blind and the lovers of humanity.

JULIA WARD HOWE.

The number of blind persons registered in the several departments of the institution on the first of October, 1908, was 327, a gain of ten over the corresponding date of the previous year, representing the admission of 47 and the discharge of 37 in the course of the year. This enrolment includes 86 boys and 89 girls in the South Boston school and 62 little boys and 57 little girls in the Jamaica Plain departments. Besides the pupils there are 13 teachers, officers or other employees and 20 adult workers in the shop under our management.

The general health has been good. Three pupils have died: one of blood poisoning, following erysipelas, one of cerebro-spinal meningitis, both at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and one of cerebral hemorrhage at the institution.

DEATH OF MEMBERS OF THE CORPORATION.

Mrs. ELLEN SEARS, widow of Gen. John F. Anderson; Miss MARY E. CHEEVER; CHARLES H. DALTON; CHARLES PERKINS GARDINER, who was also a trustee of the institution; EDWARD JACKSON; ANDREW NICKERSON; JOHN S. PALMER of Providence; GEORGE F. PARKMAN; QUINCY A. SHAW; HENRY SIGOURNEY; Miss ELIZABETH DEXTER SOHIER; Mrs. EMILY S., widow of Mahlon D. Spaulding; RICHARD SULLIVAN; EUGENE VAN R. THAYER; RICHARD HARDING WELD; ANDREW C. WHEELWRIGHT; and Miss MARY WHITEHEAD.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

FRANCIS HENRY APPLETON,
WALTER CABOT BAYLIES,
WILLIAM ENDICOTT,
PAUL REVERE FROTHINGHAM,
N. P. HALLOWELL,
JAMES ARNOLD LOWELL,
MARIAN CABOT PUTNAM,

PERMANENT FUND FOR THOMAS STRINGER.

[This fund is being raised with the distinct understanding that it is to be placed under the control and care of the trustees of the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, and that only the net income is to be given to Tom so long as he is not provided for in any other way, and is unable to earn his living, the principal remaining intact forever. It is further understood, that, at his death or when he ceases to be in need of this assistance, the income of this fund is to be applied to the support and education of some child who is both blind and deaf and for whom there is no provision made either by the state or by private individuals.]

NOTICE.

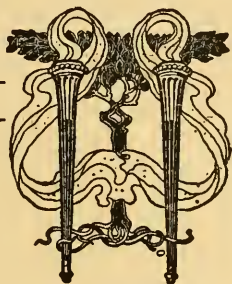

The address of the treasurer of the corporation is as follows :

Mr. WILLIAM ENDICOTT, Jr.,
No. 115 Devonshire Street,
Boston, Mass.

THE GIANT SWING, BOYS' PRIMARY, JAMAICA PLAIN.—Built of 3-inch steam pipe. The necessary couplings are regular pipe-rail fittings. From the center of the uprights (which are 11 feet $\frac{3}{4}$ inch tall) it is 14 feet 3 inches long and 6 feet wide. It is set on 6 X 6 hard pine timbers, 39 feet 6 inches long, the crosswise timbers 6 X 8 and in length 10 feet 8 inches. These are halved and put together by $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch bolts. The plank, which is 18 feet long, 1 foot wide and 3 inches thick, is hung by patent roller swing clasps (Wright & Ditson, Boston). The chains are 10 feet 6 inches long from clasp to plank. Total cost of materials, \$90.

SYNOPSIS OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CORPORATION.

SOUTH BOSTON, October 13, 1909.

The annual meeting of the corporation, duly summoned, was held to-day at the institution, and was called to order by the vice-president, Amory A. Lawrence, Esq., at 3 P.M.

The proceedings of the last meeting were read and approved.

The annual report of the trustees was read, accepted and approved, and ordered to be printed, together with the usual accompanying documents.

The annual report of the treasurer was read, accepted and ordered to be printed.

The secretary read a letter recently received from Louis L. Angell, Esq., of Providence, R. I., who had been consulted by Mr. John Edward Brown in regard to his will, by which $100,000 had been bequeathed to the institution, telling of the origin of Mr. Brown's interest in the cause of the blind.

The corporation then proceeded to ballot for officers for the ensuing year, and the following persons were unanimously elected: —

President. — Hon. Francis Henry Appleton.

Vice-President. — Amory A. Lawrence.

Treasurer. — William Endicott, Jr.

Secretary. — Edward E. Allen.

Trustees. — Francis Henry Appleton, Walter Cabot Baylies, William Endicott, James A. Lowell, Mrs. James J. Putnam, George H. Richards, Richard M. Saltonstall, and S. Lothrop Thorndike.

The meeting then adjourned.

EDWARD E. ALLEN,

Secretary.

PERKINS INSTITUTION AND MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND,
BOSTON, October 13, 1909.

To the Members of the Corporation.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN :— We beg to report a good year in all departments of the institution. Perhaps the most satisfactory matter is a good spirit consequent upon absence of friction and of much of the overformal discipline natural to institution life. Mr. Tadasu Yoshimoto, the recently appointed director of the school for the blind to be established in Tokyo,¹ while inspecting certain institutions last summer, found this spirit and asked for a definition of it, saying that he had felt more of it where he had visited in America, perhaps, than anywhere else he had been. It was explained to him that this was somewhat difficult to define; nevertheless, that it consisted essentially in such cordial understanding between teachers and pupils as tended towards a minimum of friction and a maximum of efficiency; that this mutual understanding was of the truly sympathetic kind, holding the rationally optimistic attitude, based upon the personal knowledge of successful blind men and women; that it was the product of the broad, open, unopinionated mind which is always looking for something better here and now; the product of the consciousness on the part of the pupils that the school would stand back of them so far as it could; and of the cordial willingness on the part of the administration to open the school doors again to graduates and certain others who wished to learn to do something not taught during their pupilage,—something which they really needed to acquire; and of the coöperation of the administration with every agency working along similar lines; that all this and more comprehended in the expressions “personal touch,” “inspirational method,” “opportunity for all,” begat an atmosphere of confidence and hopefulness, potent in many of our institutions and sometimes called the “new spirit.” And Mr. Yoshimoto said: “I shall try to have that, too, in my school in Japan.”

In our last report we spoke of the emphasis our director was putting upon occupations for leisure hours. This seems to us a most vital subject, making external conditions help in an essential way, as they can and do, the daily achievements of every member of the household. Besides the play apparatus,—swings, slides, merry-go-rounds, etc.,—mentioned last year, there has been opened this year a game room for the boys of the main building. To this room, every evening after supper and Saturday afternoons, many of the boys and one or more teachers and officers resort for checkers, bagatelle, parchesi, dominoes and devil-among-the-tailors. They are there because they wish to be; just as others are on the playgrounds, playing with zest and abandon, or still others are in the shop, making things or doing that which catches and holds their interest. It needs no argument to show that all this sort of thing makes for good; and the reduction in what may be called “pupil delinquencies” is a splendid proof of its value.

It is gratifying, too, to see the growing usefulness of the library of embossed books and of the Howe Memorial Press which feeds it. During the year ending September 1, 1907, only about a fourth as much reading matter appeared from this press as appeared last year, or 426 pages of line type as against 1,768 pages of Braille; and, whereas in the former year but three new books were published, in the latter there were 36. These 36 were chiefly short stories chosen for the general reader. Editions of fifty were bound up. Twelve or more copies were placed in our library, and the fact immediately published in the periodical magazines for the blind that they could be borrowed for the asking by anyone anywhere. This increased the yearly outside circulation of our library from 2,342 to 4,507, and the number of the borrowers from 563 to 872. There had been a slight but steady growth in this circulation ever since the free mailing concession went into effect in 1904; but never before has the increase been so large and so immediate as since we began to issue our stories in Braille and took means to put them into general circulation. Why, the amount of wrapping paper used this year was four reams and its value $48; even the twine required cost about $16. Those persons who are interested in the application of the funds of the Howe Memorial Press will be glad to know that within the year books and apparatus made by us for the use of the blind have been presented to libraries and individuals to the value of $854.85.

The year has been a signally prosperous one in our department of music. Here, too, the printing activities have been unmatched in former years. It was our first full year since the reorganization of the department under a single head. The change more than justified itself: with fewer teachers and therefore at smaller cost, with less wear and tear, less conflict with the just rights of other departments, and more chance for the proper play of its own, — more and better work has been done. Excellent as the annual concerts of the institution have ever been, about the one given this year, Mr. Louis C. Elson, the eminent music critic, wrote in the Boston Daily Advertiser of May 6: “It was, altogether, the most impressive concert that the Perkins Institute has yet given, and to Mr. Edwin L. Gardiner and his conscientious students the heartiest praise may be awarded without the least concession on the ground of blindness on the part of the singers.”

A beneficent addition to the scope of this department is the MARIA KEMBLE OLIVER FUND of $9,500, established this year by a friend of the institution for the purpose of furnishing to specially talented pupils advantages in music which they do not now have.

The education of our blind-deaf pupils has not suffered since Mr. Allen came, though we have made rather less mention of it than usual: it is no longer novel. And yet some of us have watched with singular interest and approval the unfolding of little Louis Yott, whose teacher has succeeded splendidly in opening to him all the influences of our kindergarten environment at Jamaica Plain. The lad joins so eagerly and naturally with his mates on the playground that the visitor looking for Louis there would have to have him pointed out. It is a perennial pleasure, too, to meet playful, smiling Nellie Winitzky. Our girls' school is a very happy place for her, for there every one can talk with her by means of finger spelling, while she always replies in speech. Fortunately Nellie has retained a good command of speech. Of Tom Stringer we reported last year that his future was something of a problem. Of course it is so. Tom is now twenty-three years old and therefore a grown man. For this reason and because his teachers for the past seventeen years had been women, and most of his friends are women, and because it seemed about time to begin the change from pupil to something else which needed to come soon, we provided him this last year with a man teacher. This teacher, Mr. Pinto, is deaf and studied at the Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C. The fact of his deafness commended him to Mr. Allen's attention as rendering him unusually keen to Tom's condition and sympathetic with it. In fact, Mr. Allen endeavored to supply Tom for a time with the experience of life in a school for the deaf where his somewhat stolid nature might perhaps be roused by companionship with deaf boys; but the schools to which he applied did not care to take Tom. A young deaf man as special teacher seemed the next best thing. Fortunately, Mr. Pinto is especially interested in the great out-of-doors; is athletic. He has therefore taken Tom about and has introduced him to a multitude of experiences. Tom who was physically strong but not given to taking physical exercise, has become athletic. He and his teacher have run together a mile in 6½ minutes. He therefore speaks of himself as a "runner man." This form of exercise has helped him use powers which must have longed for activity. Other means supplied him this summer have been six weeks of camp life in the charge and companionship of Mr. Elwyn C. Smith, one of our instructors and Tom's friend. Mr. Smith has given Tom many a long walk through the Maine woods, taught him to swim and to paddle a canoe. Altogether his year has yielded what was expected of it.

It will be seen that we have made the attempt to tide Tom over from pupilage to such independence as he may be able to attain. Naturally more interested in mechanical than intellectual pursuits, he cares little for reading. For one shut in as he must always be, this fact is to be deplored. He understands, however, that he is expected to read something every day, and he does so. But his main stay must always be industrial work of some kind. Tom is beginning the present term without a special teacher. His time has been allotted among several who can help him, — especially Mr. Mabey, our instructor in manual training, who will strive to discover something Tom can do in his shop by which he can begin to earn. Tom's friends, and they are many, may rest assured that the institution is doing for him the best it can.

Perhaps the busiest house connected with the Perkins Institution is its workshop for adults. Here twenty blind people assemble daily from their several boarding places to make and renovate mattresses, to recane chairs and to renovate feather pillows. This shop has been well conducted; it is a busy hive of industry, and general contentment prevails; some of its workers have been there for fifteen years. This year the amount paid in piecework wages to these twenty blind people is $8,040.24 or an average of $402.01.

Through the four Home Teachers of the adult blind 81 of these people have been reached at their homes. These teachers, who are themselves blind, carry about embossed books and occupation material to their pupils and give it out to their charges, teaching, encouraging and enheartening them better than seeing teachers could. This work is a genuinely useful one: it could be better carried out, we believe, under the direction of the Mass. Commission for the Blind, whose field it overlaps. Our director scarcely has the time to follow it up as he would like to.

In June were graduated with school diploma twelve pupils, nine of them being girls. This girls' class of 1909 is the largest in our history. Of these, one has returned for special studies, two have entered the State Normal School at North Adams, Mass., the rest have returned to their homes, as other girls do. Of the boys, two have come back, one has left to be foreman of the workshop lately opened by the Mass. Commission for the Blind at Fall River.

We beg to report progress towards our proposed new Perkins Institution. The Watertown site was acquired by us last fall. A building committee was appointed early in the year. In March we sent our director abroad to visit the chief institutions for the blind in Europe. He returned in June, having visited sixty-six schools, workshops and other agencies in behalf of the blind in England and Scotland, in Germany, Austria and France. He went for ideas and plans which might be helpful in shaping the new Perkins. Though he saw much that was excellent and to be admired and so incorporated at Watertown, yet he found nothing so in accord with the latest thought as the family cottage system inaugurated at South Boston by Dr. Howe forty years ago and continued more recently at Jamaica Plain by Mr. Anagnos. This system which we have been able to carry out but partially here, he recommends that we make the basis of all the dwelling houses at Watertown. It would seem extremely desirable to do so. The first cost of such construction may be greater than the block or congregate building, but the running expenses need not be larger, as we have sufficiently proved by comparing the two systems at our own institution. The main reason for this is that in the cottages much of the household service can be done by the pupils and with benefit to all concerned, whereas in the huge block building little of it can. But, even were the current expenses greater by the cottage plan, the advantages of living in this way are so far superior to those of the congregate plan that there is no comparison between them. We heartily admit the force of the proposition, made last year by a committee of experts on child-caring agencies, appointed by President Roosevelt, viz.:—

So far as it may be found necessary temporarily or permanently to care for certain classes of children in institutions, these institutions should be conducted on the cottage plan, in order that routine and impersonal care may not unduly suppress individuality and initiative. The cottage unit should not be larger than will permit effective personal relations between the adult caretaker or caretakers of each cottage and each child therein. Twenty-five is suggested as a desirable cottage unit, subject to revision in the light of further experience in the management of cottage institutions. The cottage plan is probably somewhat more expensive, both in construction and in maintenance, than the congregate system. It is so, however, only because it secures for the children a larger degree of association with adults, and a nearer approach to the conditions of family life, which are required for the proper molding of childhood. These results more than justify the increased outlay, and are truly economical. Child-caring agencies, whether supported by public or private funds, should by all legitimate means press for adequate financial support. Inferior methods should never be accepted by reason of lack of funds without continuing protest. Cheap care of children is ultimately enormously expensive, and is unworthy of a strong community. Existing congregate institutions should so classify their inmates and segregate them into groups as to secure as many of the benefits of the cottage system as possible, and should look forward to the adoption of the cottage type when new buildings are constructed.

We report with no little satisfaction that certain large sums have been bequeathed to us recently, notably from the estate of Eugene Tompkins of Boston, who with his father had been lifelong friends of the institution, and from that of John Edward Brown, a lawyer of Providence, R. I. But, as these legacies are subject to life interests, it is likely to be many years before they come into our possession, and we are in as urgent need of money as ever.

Our building committee has selected an architect, and he is now engaged upon plans according to the "requirements" given him. The cost of building, however, has so much increased of late years and the requirements of the institution call for such an extensive plant that our full reconstruction will necessarily be delayed unless large additions to our funds are received within a short time. Nevertheless, we are going on with the plans and hope to be able to break ground when they are done and to build part of the plant, even if we cannot build it all. We want to reconstruct in harmony with the best present thought on institution housing and to make the plant a model of the adaptation of these ideas to our work. Such buildings would not be simply of local benefit to the cause of the blind but would have their effect throughout the country.

Work for the blind is an important and a noble one. It is necessarily expensive. There are many things which we hope to accomplish for it here in New England, of which the reconstruction of the Perkins Institution at Watertown is but one, though it is the chief one. A great increase in the funds of the Howe Memorial Press, for example, could be made to help the cause wonderfully, by increasing the output of embossed books and of tangible appliances and making possible their wider and more general distribution. And more beneficent still would be the establishment of a permanent bureau, similar to that of the Valentin Haüy Association in Paris, for the collection and diffusion of data of all kinds relating to blindness and the blind, and the publication and financing of a magazine in the interests of the blind, like The Outlook for the Blind, which, good as it is, cannot be supported by any subscription list which it is likely to have; in fact, the equipping of a building under whose roof all the agencies working for the blind of our community could be gathered together. Possibilities of the kind are not simply alluring, they are bound to be actualities somewhere and sometime. Therefore let not the friends of the blind stay their hands. The Perkins Institution can put to good use whatever comes.

There were 315 blind persons enrolled in the several departments of the institution on the first of October, 1909; this number is smaller by 12 than that of the previous year. It represents a gain of 53 persons and a loss of 65 during the year. The registration includes 82 boys and 79 girls at South Boston, 63 little boys and 57 little girls at Jamaica Plain, 12 teachers, officers and other employees, and 22 adult men and women in the workshop on Fourth St., South Boston.

The institution has suffered a great loss in the death of William Luther Stover on the 22nd of December, 1908, after more than seventeen years' faithful service as a music teacher in the boys' school at South Boston.

One of the little kindergarten pupils, Claudia Goold, died at her home in Maine, on the 6th of October, 1908.

Otherwise the record of health has been generally good.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR.

To the Board of Trustees.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—The year has been a prosperous one. An excellent spirit prevails in all departments. The cordiality with which the officers and children at our kindergarten and primary school have received the gospel of out-of-doors is refreshing. The chart on opposite page, prepared by Mr. Julian H. Mabey, an instructor and supervisor of long standing at the main institution, shows a comparison of the activities of the boys' department at South Boston and demonstrates clearly how wholesome the life there has been, increasing activities producing decreasing delinquencies.

One of the sub-departments of our school which visitors find very interesting is the library and museum. There we had on the first of last June 16,872 books ¹ and a large assortment of models and objects for instruction, arranged in three large rooms where the three librarians find plenty to do, two in special and miscellaneous library work, one solely in the circulation of books. It is astonishing how busy this one has become, for every mail brings requests for reading matter; three times weekly the institution horse hauls the books to and from the post office. While our school circulation has grown, it does not keep pace with this ¹ These books are in different systems, as follows:—Line type, 9,491; Braille type, 5,824; New York point type, 1,004; Moon type, 553. Any of these may be borrowed. Lists are sent on application.

The publications of the Howe Memorial Press, both books and music, are no longer included in the annual report of the institution.

demand from the outside. So, the present function of our library would seem to be mainly the feeding of the reading hunger of the adult blind. Indeed, I have not hesitated to make it so. This library may be looked upon then as the really serviceable end of the Howe Memorial Press. Now, it has appeared to me as though most of the printing for the blind during the past seventy-five years in America had been done to meet the needs of the schools for the blind, and rightly so, as the government grant for the national printing house was for purposes of education and the support of the various school printing-offices came chiefly from the school funds. But the Howe Memorial Press has an independent endowment whose object is the supplying of reading matter to the blind at large. And now that these needs of the schools have been so largely met and that the growth of home teaching to the adult, and the recent enormous circulation of the periodical publications for the blind have created a large reading public who are not in schools, and that many circulating departments of embossed books in connection with public libraries have sprung up, the need of all these readers for general literature has so appealed to me that for the past three years I have turned the chief activities of the Howe Memorial Press toward supplying them and have begun to do this with good, short, wholesome stories in variety to suit various tastes. Of these we have published 76, of which some 2,194 copies altogether have gone into circulation. Though, as I have said, these were not embossed for our own pupils or the pupils of any school, yet they have been eagerly read by them also.

Having chosen to begin with fiction, we next heeded the suggestion of librarians and decided to issue books in smaller and lighter volumes than the quarto which has been the standard size heretofore. We have done this by reducing the height of a page but increasing its width and by putting in fewer pages, making it possible to bind up the booklets ourselves. Our object being to bring reading within the reach of the greatest number of people, we have been continually experimenting to improve the print, both in scale and gage of characters and in impression, and we shall continue to do so always. Our local type committee consists of Mr. Dennis A. Reardon, the long-time manager of the Howe Memorial Press, Mr. Joel W. Smith, the originator of the American modification of Braille's system, and Mr. Frank C. Bryan, the operator of our power stereotypemaker. The two former are blind; the latter, who is not, has had thirteen years' experience in making Braille plates. This committee is responsible for the character of the embossing and, while realizing that no system or manner of printing it can suit everybody, will welcome any and all helpful criticism. The American Braille, proving in our experience the best tangible system so far devised, is used in our book publications. Anyone wishing to can easily learn to read and write it.

Music may also be borrowed from our library. Of this we have a particularly large and rich collection in Braille's notation, 1,773 different compositions, either single pieces or collections of music. Many new pieces have been added recently, including much specially printed for our chorus and our normal class.¹ Mr. John F. Hartwell, who, besides being in charge of the boys' normal work, is also music printer, gave a part of each day last August to preparing this new music. He also makes constant additions to the music library throughout the year.

In Europe, the general circulation of embossed books is also large. There, however, most of the volumes in libraries are handwritten in Braille by ladies of leisure. I saw two or three large power presses there last spring, but many more small school printing-offices, having blind girl plate-makers and printers. I did not discover that we Americans were at all distanced by the Europeans in embossed-book production or even approached in facilities for circulation. But in many matters of interest to our profession I found that we could profitably go to school abroad. In Germany and Austria, where I spent most of my time, the teaching seemed especially thorough and practical. I admired their appliances and their museums, full of materials for object lessons; and their care to train the hand before cultivating the head. I collected there and ordered sent to Boston small teaching appliances in a considerable variety to add to the nucleus of an historical museum which I started two years ago. The historical museums of Berlin, Paris and, especially, of Vienna, showing the progress of the work for the blind there, have inspired me to plan for a similar comprehensive museum in our own new buildings.

I have elsewhere written down my impressions of foreign schools.¹ It will, therefore, suffice to say here that generally speaking European and American ideals in the education of the blind differ in this: the former is too often satisfied with efficiency of the blind in a few industrial pursuits, striving through augmentation money to make them contented with their lot; the latter, our own, aims rather to inspire each one to make the most of himself, not to be content with less than the best he can do and enjoy and never to accept charity when he can possibly get along without it. Thus it is that so many of the institutions abroad are mainly workshops with production as their main end and aim, while our institutions are chiefly schools and such production as we turn out but incidental to the process of instruction. Over there competition is so hard and opportunity so limited that the blind are not expected to get on in the world without special aid and protection, whereas over here they are, and for this very reason very many succeed in doing so. Nevertheless, the European plan, in so far as it recognizes "aftercare" responsibilities, is more comprehensive than our own. The American way, however, with a touch of the old-world paternalism added, seems to me the more hopeful of the two.

As to buildings, which I particularly went to see, the Europeans are gradually abandoning their old and incommodious city structures and instead are erecting new ones on suburban sites. These new buildings for the blind I found admirable in many respects, often beautiful in design and always practical and well built. The tendency in Germany is now towards the cottage, — or, as they term it, the pavilion, in distinction to the block, or congregate plan. The separation of pupils into houses is by sex, age and occupation, but all go to a common dining room. But with this separation there is there, as yet, no reaching out toward the ideal of making each cottage a home. To do this groups must be small and each member of the household should contribute something to the daily work of the family. The individual dining room (and kitchen) still farther does away with institution features and is essential to the ideal family grouping towards which the best thought on this subject is surely turning in America.

REPORT OF MR. EDWIN L. GARDINER, DIRECTOR OF MUSIC, ON THE WORK OF THE FIRST YEAR OF THE PIANOFORTE NORMAL COURSE.

The Pianoforte Normal Department of the Perkins Institution was organized for the purpose of giving to our advanced pupils the opportunity of teaching seeing children the art of playing the pianoforte; this teaching to be done under the supervision of trained and experienced members of our faculty.

From conversations with former pupils of our school we were made acquainted with some of the difficulties and embarrassments which they encountered at the beginning of their professional careers, and the present course was planned and is being conducted with a view to the overcoming of those difficulties and embarrassments and the instilling of confidence among the young people who shall hereafter leave our school to become teachers of music.

In this department young teachers are told what to teach and how to teach it. The lesson is thoroughly prepared in advance. Instruction to cover all possible contingencies is given to the young teacher preceding the lesson hour, and close watch is kept of proceedings during that period. Mistakes of any kind are noted and criticism and advice given in private after the lesson. Young teachers enter these classes with much more confidence than would otherwise be possible, and they soon acquire judgment and skill which would take long periods to attain but for this practice of teaching under supervision.

The course is planned to cover a period of three years, and embraces the study of hand-culture and instruction in the best methods of teaching the fundamentals of pianoforte playing. The young teachers receive class lessons in hand-culture and in turn impart this knowledge to their pupils under the direction of the special instructor in that department. There are general classes for the seeing pupils in which hand-culture, fundamentals, and general musical subjects are taught. In these classes the Normal Teachers take turns in directing and conducting the work.

For the benefit of the Normal Teachers we have begun the stereotyping of "The Relation of Psychology to Music," by E. F. Bartholomew, Ph.D., D.D. This work, which embraces such subjects as "The Nature of Music," "The Musical Faculty," "Means of Musical Expression," "Habit, Association, Memory, Imagination," etc., is read and discussed by the young teachers in class.

To provide suitable music for use of the seeing pupils in these classes we have stereotyped the First and Second grades of the New England Conservatory Course as well as some forty pianoforte pieces of the second grade.

A thing which has claimed much attention during the year is class-room deportment, and rigid discipline has been maintained regarding personal appearance, habits of speech and general conduct in the classes. We consider this one of the most important branches of the course, and as a key to the conditions which often prevail among our young people the following list of admonitions, advice and criticism offered during the session will prove interesting.

Speak cheerfully to the pupil when entering the room.

Be prompt at the lesson hour.

Prepare the lesson thoroughly in advance.

Do not make rash promises of results in a given time.

Be more sparing of praise.

Cultivate cheerfulness, patience, dignity.

Do not encourage tattling.

Do not discuss pupils publicly.

Never chew gum in the class room or in the presence of pupils.

Always address a fellow teacher as Mr. in the presence of pupils.

Touch the pupil's hand very lightly when necessary to do so at all.

Never put the arms about a pupil when directing wrist action.

Keep out of the pupil's light when standing or sitting.

Brush the hair, clothes and shoes before lessons.

Keep the teeth clean and the breath sweet.

Wash the hands before lessons.

Clean the finger nails before lessons.

Always wear clean linen.

The above are some of the matters which we found it necessary to bring to the attention of our Normal Teachers at various times, and it will be readily seen that too much care cannot be taken in the training of our young people in classroom deportment.

Practically all the pupils of blind teachers are seeing children, and it is necessary for the blind teacher to know thoroughly the staff notation. Our blind children are taught the staff notation at the very beginning. In fact this notation precedes instruction in the Braille. Methods and apparatus in use by us during this early period serve to fix the staff characters indelibly on the mind, and later, the experience which our Normal Teachers acquire in the use of these staff characters with their young seeing pupils should make of them thoroughly efficient teachers of the seeing.

It may be of interest to some to know that young boys and girls are admitted to our normal classes without charge and without a too close examination as to their musical qualifications, preference being given to those who know nothing of pianoforte playing. In actual experience the blind teacher will have in his classes many who have but little musical ability but who wish to develop that little to some extent. It is therefore of advantage that the teacher have early experience with this class of pupils, learning how to interest them and cultivating patience and resourcefulness.

The first year's work in this department was encouraging. There were eight teachers and twenty-three pupils registered. With one exception all the pupils were under twelve years of age and were beginners. A few had received some training in the notation of the G cleff, and one or two had received a very few lessons in playing the pianoforte.

Seventy-five per cent of the class completed the first grade. At the end of the session in June, 1909, a recital was given in the school hall to which the parents and friends of the pupils were invited. At this recital seventeen of the class participated with credit to themselves and to their teachers.

It is our belief that this course is invaluable to our blind young men and young women who aspire to become teachers of the pianoforte, and as pupils become advanced in other branches of music we hope to be able to provide suitable opportunity for them to gain experience in teaching their specialty under competent supervision.

SYNOPSIS OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CORPORATION.

SOUTH BOSTON, October 13, 1910.

The annual meeting of the corporation, duly summoned, was held to-day at the institution, and was called to order by the president, Hon. Francis Henry Appleton, at 3 P.M.

The proceedings of the last meeting were read and approved.

The annual report of the trustees was read, accepted and approved, and ordered to be printed, together with the usual accompanying documents.

The annual report of the treasurer was presented, accepted and ordered to be printed.

The corporation then proceeded to ballot for officers for the ensuing year, and the following persons were unanimously elected: —

President. — Hon. Francis Henry Appleton.

Vice-President. — Amory A. Lawrence.

Treasurer. — William Endicott, Jr.

Secretary. — Edward E. Allen.

Trustees. — Francis Henry Appleton, Walter Cabot Baylies, William Endicott, James A. Lowell, Mrs. James J. Putnam, George H. Richards, Richard M. Saltonstall, and S. Lothrop Thorndike.

Mr. R. Clipston Sturgis was unanimously elected a member of the corporation.

The meeting then adjourned.

EDWARD E. ALLEN,

Secretary.

PERKINS INSTITUTION AND MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND,
BOSTON, October 13, 1910.

To the Members of the Corporation.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—Another prosperous school year has been added to the many that are past. The whole number of pupils enrolled with us continues large,— for the year, 304. While good numbers show interest and indicate general approval of the school and are thus a source of satisfaction, the director is more gratified at the quality of work done and at the responsive spirit shown throughout the institution and kindergarten families. He reports a growing comprehension of the duty of teacher leadership and of the utilization of its opportunities,— particularly at the Jamaica Plain department where the newer and better conditions help. This lower school is a delightful place to visit: most of the children are so strong and well and full of life! It is a joy to see them throng to their games and sports, together with their teachers; and it is an equal pleasure to note indoors the added zest with which both attack their manual and intellectual pursuits. The playground apparatus there pays for itself over and over again, the many attractive pieces and kinds making it feasible to ask and expect every teacher to play regularly and often with her children.

FREE TIME ON THE GROUNDS OF THE GIRLS' PRIMARY, JAMAICA PLAIN, IN 1910.

BOYS' PRIMARY BUILDING, JAMAICA PLAIN, IN 1910. — Kindergarten boys in the foreground.

A prime object in assembling blind children at boarding schools is to build them up physically. We must build them up with plenty of good wholesome food, and, as fresh air is not less important than food, we must see that they get plenty of this both by day and by night. We must see, too, that their bodies are kept clean and the food they eat is given a chance to do the most good; that is, their teeth must be in condition to do their work properly.

Within the past two years our dentists at both the lower and upper schools report having given corrective attention to the mouths and teeth of all the pupils, — a very considerable undertaking and one which sadly needed doing.

While our housemothers and other officers have been thus active for the children's physical well-being, the teachers have done equally well for their advancement in school. Of the 128 pupils in attendance at the lower school, 13 have been promoted this fall from the kindergarten and subprimary buildings to the primary, and 14 from Jamaica Plain to the upper school at South Boston. These last have come over well grounded in reading, writing, arithmetic, and also in spelling. All the primary children had last year expert drill in "physical expression." We employed a graduate of the Curry School of Expression, Miss Anne Rothwell Stewart, to give several hours weekly from January to June to the general subject of expression in reading and dramatization, training our primary teachers by themselves and also their classes. She also drilled the primary children in dancing steps. In this the regular teachers enthusiastically helped.

At the upper school the desire to excel in outdoor sports continues to grow,—even the girls' classes competing among themselves as far as we are willing to let them; for competitive athletics may be harmful to girls. They may be harmful to boys, too, though quite in another way,—absorbing their best energy and leaving too little for other rather important school pursuits. Moderately followed, however, athletics are invaluable as a means to health of body and of mind. They likewise ennoble the spirit by inciting one to do the best one can for one's school in competition with other schools.

The director makes favorable report of the work of the school department as exemplified in the graduating exercises of the class of 1910. We were again gratified also at the excellence of the annual concert in May, the most ambitious effort of our department of music.

The continued revival of interest in the manual training and work department is likewise gratifying. Seven of the boys, leaving school in June, drew their free-time and voluntary earnings for the past two years, amounting to $70.10. The department of piano tuning continues active and efficient, and, besides having about 20 young men under instruction, keeps in tune the 86 instruments of the institution, sends advanced tuners to do private work, and does by arrangement, through two skilled graduates, the piano tuning for the public schools of Boston and Medford. The Boston work it has done for 33 years.

The usefulness of our library of embossed books keeps increasing:—2,655 books were circulated within the upper school for voluntary reading, while 6,094 were sent out to the adult blind in the United States and Canada. The number of these adult readers has grown from 872 last year to 1,158 this year.

The following statistics of the printing department speak for themselves:—

Embossed literature, . . .	33 titles, 2,342 copies, 107,144 pages.
Miscellaneous leaflets,	43,810 “
Sheet music,	3,796 copies, 43,042 “
Bound “	369 “ 16,400 “

The department's sales and donations for the past three years show commendable activity. They were as follows:—1,150 styluses; 19 peg boards; 227 checker boards; 26 Braille writers; 62 pocket tablets; 234 Braille slates; 480 writing cards; 2,824 alphabet sheets; 960 booklets; 430 paper maps; and 2,841 volumes of small books.

The special teachers to Louis Yott and Nellie Winitzky, our deaf and blind pupils, both resigned in June, after having completed, Mrs. Sagar, four years, and Miss Hoxie, six years. Their success with these pupils was marked. Both pupils promise fairly well, though the boy is physically and mentally the more robust. Miss Abbie G. Pottle, former special teacher to Cora Crocker, has now been engaged to instruct Nellie Winitzky, and Miss Ethel D. Evans, to instruct Louis Yott.

Tom Stringer announced during the year that he was a man and wished to work among men. So, at his own request and with the consent and approval of his many friends, he has been assigned for the present to reseat chairs at our workshop for adults, where he receives such wages as he can earn. He continues to live at the institution. Further report will be made of Tom by the director. An account of the funds held for him is given in the report of the treasurer.

The workshop for adults, thanks to the patronage it continues to merit through good work, reports another year of active efficiency. Its able and tireless corps, both the seven of the staff and the twenty "workers," are to be commended.

We appreciate also the services of the traveling state teachers to the adult blind. Of these teachers, Miss Lydia Y. Hayes, the first appointed to this work ten years ago, resigned in March to become supervisor of home teaching of the blind in New Jersey. We bespeak for her a continued success in her enlarged field. To her place two other graduates of our girls' department have been appointed, each to work half time. The number of adults taught within the year is 214, and the number of lessons given them 2,030.

We are unable to announce any large bequests to the institution this year as compared with other years; which fact, considering our funds available for rebuilding, we regret exceedingly. Nevertheless, it is pleasant to report having received through the Ladies' Auxiliary Society $6,367, in aid of the undertaking.

Our architect, building committee, and director, and several of our corps of officers and teachers, have labored together since our last report on plans and specifications for the new Perkins Institution; and they are now done and ready for the contractors' estimates. When the buildings themselves are completed, we shall present to the corporation, to the friends and patrons of the institution, and to the blind, a very practical and complete plant for training and influencing blind youth to live lives of efficiency in the community to which they belong.

The registration of blind persons connected with the institution on the first of October, 1910, was 323, an increase of 8 over the enrolment on the same date of the preceding year. This number includes 80 boys and 83 girls at the upper school in South Boston, 63 boys and 61 girls at the lower school in Jamaica Plain, 12 teachers and officers, and 24 adult workers in the workshop at South Boston. There have been 47 admitted and 39 discharged during the year.

CAUSES OF BLINDNESS OF PUPILS ADMITTED DURING THE SCHOOL-YEAR 1909-1910: — Ophthalmia neonatorum, 9; Corneal opacities, 2; Corneal ulceration, 1; Keratitis, 1; Congenital cataracts, 4; Congenital cataracts, with opacity of cornea, 1; Cataracts, with iritis, 1; Traumatic cataract, resulting in uveitis, 1; Choroiditis, 2; Atrophy of the optic nerve, 9; Congenital amblyopia, 2; Symblepharon, 1; Injury, with sympathetic inflammation, 3; Gunshot wound, 2; Phthisis bulbi, 2; Unknown, 1.

We have lost two pupils by death during the past year: — Joseph R. FitzSimmons died of pneumonia at the institution, October 9, 1909; and Frederick O. Riley died at his home, Newport, R. I., during the summer vacation, after a lingering illness which had kept him from school since the previous winter.

With the exception of 12 mild cases of diphtheria and 13 of measles, which we had at Jamaica Plain last winter and spring, and all of which recovered, the health of the pupils has been good.

On the 28th of December, 1909, occurred the death of Mr. Anthony W. Bowden, former steward, who, having been employed by Dr. Howe in 1847, continued in the service of the institution in one capacity and another until 1897, when he retired on account of old age.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR.¹

To the Board of Trustees.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:— At the Pennsylvania Institution, when I took charge of it in 1890, the activities of the boys were confined to the usual school routine, but those of the girls included making their beds and doing the dishes. Time, the inexorable driver of Americans, required that the servants should help with this work. When the matron could not be present, this half-hour was a time for gossip and sometimes for interchange of letters and messages from the boys' school. The teachers looked askance at the results of this dish-washing; the girls themselves hated it; so finally, believing the thing as carried out to be of greater harm than good, I put an end to it. When some years later I came to plan the new buildings at Overbrook to have a common kitchen and dining-rooms, it seemed best to shape things without reference to help from the pupils other than the usual sheet and towel hemming and bed-making for all. I was in the habit of saying to the boys and girls: "You are getting much — very much here at school; see that you grasp the opportunities so lavishly provided; study hard, cultivate a good spirit and be a credit to the institution; — more than this we do not ask or expect of you." Now, after repeating this sort of thing for a number of years, I came to state it less and less heartily. I could not but see that, earnestly as those pupils strove, they were but human and responded all too well to their environment, which was beautiful but academic, inspiring but still institutional. The life there flowed on too easily and did not furnish enough chances for either pupil or teacher to contribute his part towards the running of things; I mean that part, the mere doing of which makes the doer feel himself useful and necessary. This thought troubled me more and more; for I realized that the way we had builded did not lend itself readily to changes.

Since coming to Boston I have given much time, both at home and abroad, to studying the cottage system as applied to institutions in general and, in particular, to our own most practical and splendid family cottage plan established by Dr. Howe in 1869. As this is essentially the plan on which the new Perkins Institution is to be based, I will briefly describe it.

A Perkins Institution cottage is a dwelling house by itself, built for a family of 22 people,—16 girls, 1 housemother, 3 or 4 teachers and a cook. The girls vary in age from 14 to 22 years. They sleep two in a room, in order that they may learn adaptability and unselfishness. They, the teachers and the housemother share in doing all the light housework of the family. The girls' department lives in five such cottages, each fronting directly upon a street. There are, then, 5 front doors, 5 door-bells, 5 parlors, 5 housemothers, 5 cooks, 5 kitchens, and 5 dining-rooms. Ah, but does this pay? you ask. If you mean the small families, are they not small only when compared with institutions? but when compared with the usual family are they not large? If you mean costly to maintain, I reply, "we have not found these so." Our boys' department necessarily still runs on the congregate plan; and neither Mr. Anagnos, who was ever proud to be able to say so, nor I have been able justly to bring down the annual per capita cost of the boys to that of the girls. Doubtless this greater cost of the boys is partly due to the greater appetites of boys, partly to the waste of cooked food, inevitable with the large institution kitchen and avoidable in the small family; but it is more surely ascribable to the fact that, though the two departments are about equal in numbers, the boys' department requires 18 servants whereas the girls' needs but 6, the sixth keeping the schoolhouses clean. However, even were the cost of the two plans the same or greater in the cottage system than in the congregate, I would recommend and urge it in any residential school for young people, — always provided the character of the housemothers and teachers is what it should be; for this is fundamental, and the difficulty of finding and keeping such a personnel is the only really serious factor in the problem.

My immediate object, however, is not so much to show the comparative merits of the two systems of institutional housing as to demonstrate the adaptability of small cottage families to contributory work by pupils as it is done at Perkins.

I have said that in our cottages every member of the household contributes her part to the care and running of the family. To begin with, the housemother and teachers take full care of their own rooms. Thus the example is set the pupils that such work is both respectable and dignified for all. The girls also care for their rooms or, if one of the two occupants of a room sweeps and dusts it, the other perhaps cleans up the bath-room or the hallway or helps with the dishes. The less bright girl may have the simple duty of ringing the dinner-bell on time: for her this is developmental because it is a responsibility affecting the rest of the family. Another duty of the dull girl or of a younger girl is sweeping down the stairs: she can do it well, and so it is an encouragement for her. Setting the table, cleaning the silver, taking care of the pantries, etc., is kept by the same group for about three months; washing and drying the dishes takes a group of three girls about twenty minutes; setting the table involves filling the glasses with water or with milk and usually the placing on the table of the dishes of food, though in the case of hot soup, etc., the cook may come in to do this. Of course, housemother, teachers, and girls sit together at table and eat the same food, — the housemother serving the main dish, the teachers the vegetables. The tables being small most of the passing of plates is across table; but one of the partly seeing girls acts her part as waitress, and I have even seen a totally blind one perform this duty exceedingly well. These girls are, as I have said, of different ages; they do not pass from one cottage to another but keep to the same one until graduation and always, when they return for a visit, they go to their old school home, — May Cottage or Fisher Cottage, as the case may be. Thus, every family contains those who have learned to do each kind of housework, and these help the housemother teach the new comers.

Were all the little ones together, as they are at our Jamaica Plain department, neither one housemother nor one servant would suffice for a family.

The following quotations from our staff answer certain natural questions: —

A housemother writes: —

I consider the girls as willing workers as any normal girls. No girl washes dishes because she loves to, but as it is a part of the work to be done she accepts it as one of the duties and goes about it in a cheerful and happy manner, as we see in the home where the daughters wash the dishes and the mother does the more important work that they cannot do. I consider the amount of breakage small under any conditions, and when we consider that the workers are blind or nearly so — the wonder to me is that there are so few broken. We do not let the girls know this but insist on a standard of carefulness. It is this standard of carefulness and tidiness that shows in the child very quickly. . . . I have five girls that go home every Saturday. They are among the oldest, but those that are left never ask me who is to do their work but with the same interest as they would have in their own homes they plan and do the work of those absent girls. . . . Sometimes I have to send a girl back to do her work over. I never knew one to resist, and the second time there is nothing to complain of. This cottage system is particularly helpful to matron as well as pupil, — teaching one the value of patience and the other the virtue of helpfulness in the home and to such an extent that she need never feel that she is useless and burdensome but as helpful as any member of the family.

Another housemother writes:—

Among the many advantages proved by the coöperative plan as carried on in this department are responsibility for the comfort of others, usefulness, unselfishness, thoughtfulness, development of the hands and of calculation, also, overcoming the evil of too much idleness, cultivation of tact, such as getting on with various dispositions, the training of powers and purpose of action, as well as inculcating the economic principle.

Still another housemother has said:—

During the year of 1909–1910, it so happened that in my cottage we had not so many girls as usual who had partial sight, making it necessary to call upon those who had no sight at all to wait upon the table. We now have three girls with no sight whatever, waiting upon the tables every day, and the ease and directness with which they remove the dishes is quite remarkable. They rarely meet with mishaps of any kind, and they show a pleasure and assurance in doing the work that is thoroughly praiseworthy.

Talking with the girls one day, I said to them: “Do you not find that this regular practice of household work that you have here from day to day helps you to be more useful to your mothers when you are at home?” and one after another assented with fervor. One said: “My mother says she doesn’t know what she would do without me. I’m such a help to her.” Another remarked: “My mother never lets me do anything when I go home for the vacations, because she wants me to have a rest, — I have so much to do here.” “But,” I said, “you are willing to help her if she needs your help!” “Oh, yes,” she said with emphasis. Still another said: “My mother’s frightened to death to have me do anything for fear I will get hurt in some way or another ; it's a good thing I came here and learned to do things, for I never should have learned at home." And I think this holds true in most cases, — the home influence and training fail to develop any such results as we see from the methods practised here. We expect our girls to do in general ways just as seeing people do and hold them to the same standards ; — not that they all come up to the level by any means, but the girls with average ambitions like to think that they are doing things just as seeing girls are.

Then, too, some of the girls (not all) are most desirous of making a good appearance. They enjoy the little social opportunities that coming to the table with their teachers three times a day affords them. Some respond and talk very readily ; others hardly speak. Most of them have excellent use of the knife, fork, and napkin ; and the general table appointments are carefully observed by them. In fact, I have heard one of the girls say : " Now, girls, I think we ought to make ourselves just as agreeable to the seeing people as we can." I do think they appreciate and enjoy the living together that comes with the family life, the occasional Sunday visitor, or the guest to dinner or tea, whether their own friends or those of the teachers.

One Sunday a friend was overpersuaded to dine with me ; she felt that she " never could," it would make her " feel so uncomfortable," but I finally prevailed, and she stayed. After the dinner was over and we had left the dining-room, she said : " Why, where were the blind girls ? " I said : " Why, they were all about you in the dining-room," whereupon she said : " How well they behaved. I thought it would be a perfect Babel here." I asked her if she thought I could be happy living in a Babel. When the time came for her to depart, she said : " How pleasant it is here ! I am going away a wiser woman than I came." I merely mention this little incident to illustrate how small an idea many people have of what the blind are capable of accomplishing in so many ways; and here I must express what my experiences and observations of eight years' residence here have proved to me, and it is this: — the inestimable value that comes to these girls from the wise and helpful companionship with their teachers, right here in the house and at table with them every day. It certainly gives them the refining influences of home life, which could come to them in no other way.

Miss Gazella Bennett, who has been principal of the girls' school for many years, writes: —

This family system of Dr. Howe's was a broad foundation, and time has shown that this "home service" can and does develop noble women. The housework that the girls do saves hired help to be sure, but this is of small consequence when compared with the opportunities for general usefulness and womanly character which these services, required in the spirit of a home trust, give to our girls. A fundamental quality of character needing early attention is responsibility, and any simple but needed service, rendered regularly, contributes essentially to its growth. . . . The joy of finding one's self an essential factor in the family has changed many a girl from an idler to a willing worker; from listless despondency to active helpfulness. . . . These forty years have proven that the home service in comparison with other training of the school has developed in our girls . . . much of joy in service and of ability to serve. . . . The confidence which comes to blind women from having done simple domestic work, while girls at school, and the right attitude towards such work, makes them desirable members of a busy household, while the work brings to them resources for helpfulness that make for happiness!

Please notice that this contributory effort on the part of our girls has gone on successfully and without interruption for forty years.

At a meeting of the alumnæ of our school, held last year, it was the sense of all present that the daily housework they had done at school had been an opportunity which they would not now have willingly foregone; the only fault they could find with it was that it was not varied enough. One said: "It is a fact that most pupils of the institution come from humble homes. With proper domestic training, they might return to those homes after graduation and make themselves almost indispensable; for when the mother lays down her burden and the brothers and sisters marry, the blind sister will not be simply tolerated but will become a necessary part of the home. She will have her place and work and will escape that most depressing consciousness that she is not needed." Another said: "We need to make ourselves as versatile at school as we can. Let no girl deceive herself with the idea that someone is going to show her, when she leaves school, the things she did not quite get at while there. If she does, she is doomed to sad disappointment."

"It is for us then who have felt this need of more domestic training to urge that there shall be more."

Now, in preparation for the reorganization at Watertown of the whole Perkins Institution, which is to be based on the schoolhouse and family plan, I have engaged for the year 1910-1911 a former resident teacher of our girls' school, who has just finished a course in domestic training at Simmons College. She has introduced this fall the larger variety of useful work which the alumnae suggested. In order to get the time for it the other departments have had to yield a little and consent to do more intensive work than heretofore. Household training has become a regular course, and every girl will take it, as she takes manual training, and be ranked in it as in other studies.

Following is a tentative outline of the course, and please note that most of it is to be carried on in the several cottages and not in some special classroom; also that the instruction is to be more individual than collective, much as piano instruction is given; that the course is graded and that it is not supplanting the present housework plan but that it is supplementing it.

TENTATIVE COURSE IN GENERAL HOUSEWORK

FOR THE GIRLS OF OUR FIVE FAMILIES AT SOUTH BOSTON.

A. As a contribution to family life.

Grade 1: Making beds; sweeping floors and stairs; dusting furniture and woodwork; sweeping rugs with broom and carpet-sweeper.

Grade 2: Dish-washing, including care of towels and sinks.

Grade 3: Bath-room work; — care of tubs and bowls.

Grade 4: Table work; setting table; waiting on table; clearing table.

- B. Class work (one hour a week), given to post-graduates and girls in the last three years of school and to girls who may never reach the High School but are proficient in the first three grades as outlined above.

Bath-room work continued; — care of closet and how to avoid plumbing troubles.

Filling and cleaning lamps.

Polishing metals.

Washing windows.

Consideration and care of all kinds of wood and finishes.

Sweeping a carpeted room; the general cleaning of a room; dusting books and bric-a-brac; cleaning piano keys.

Table work; — the finer points of table setting and serving.

Simple laundry work, as far as present facilities allow.

Consideration of materials of house furnishings and their cost.

- C. Cooking course. This course is given only to those girls who have attained a certain amount of proficiency in general housework. Classes of two or three.

First year: Building a fire; caring for stove, refrigerator, and cooking utensils; preparing a meal; serving it on time and in an attractive manner. This meal will be the supper eaten by the cottage family on the evening of the lesson.

Second year: Practical cooking continued; study of cost of food and planning of meals.

It is expected that the course will be carried out at Watertown somewhat after this fashion; that is, in the several cottages, where all the work done counts most, and not in our extra or model cottage, which is intended primarily to afford a few graduated or special pupils the chance to do a little practical housekeeping by themselves at school before trying it in the world.

But what about the boys? you naturally ask. At residential schools for the deaf the boys perform their daily chores of housework. At Thompson's Island in Boston harbor is a large school where every bit of the work of the place, indoor and outdoor, is done by the boys under competent men and women: there is no servant on the island. The boys acquire a sense of ownership, and public opinion makes for orderliness.

Prof. Charles S. Baldwin of Yale University, after a visit to Kent School, Kent, Conn., where he found "34 healthy, happy boys, under good control but with much liberty and initiative," working out a part of their tuition fees through housework, said of it: "Far from being irksome it is evidently popular; and there is not the slightest suggestion of a charity school. On the contrary, there is a marked and general dignity of self-respect."

At Hastings-on-Hudson is the regenerated New York Orphan Asylum, the boys and the girls now living in complete cottage families whence they go to school as from their own homes. There are no servants there. Read the book "How Two Hundred Children Live and Learn" by Dr. Reeder, the superintendent, and then make a pilgrimage to the school, as several of us did last winter. You will come away, as we did, with an ideal to work towards.

What are we going to do with our boys? Surely blind boys are as capable as blind girls, and we expect ours to show it at Watertown, where they will be divided into family groups of twenty, just as the girls will be, and will be expected to contribute each his part. Is it not true that what we put into our work we get out of it, and not more? Too much unoccupied time may be harmful, as every one of us knows. Indeed, it is too often a just criticism of our institutions that in free time the boys are rough and loud, breaking things in their investigations and their play and making dirt about the yards for others to clean up. We should be sparing in meting out punishments for such delinquencies, unless we have done our utmost to forestall them. There is no such preventive of these evils as inculcating a real live interest and part proprietorship in general good order. Helping in the daily chores of the house or grounds cultivates pride in the appearance of things and awakes this sense of personal responsibility for good order of which I am speaking. Moreover, it serves to fill the "margins" of time and, hence, to inculcate habits of thrift. Stanley Hall declares that the training which a New England country boy received a century ago was probably the best in the history of the world; for then a boy grew up always a sharer in the work and the responsibility for the family's wellbeing. It was while the home supplied this necessary corrective of daily work for the child that our present general academic curriculum was chiefly formed. The public schools are still bookish, but they are being fast leavened with the yeast of primary knowledge which comes to any one only from doing and making things with his own hands. Manual training public schools are here; industrial and vocational public schools are not far off.

Now it seems to me that the public school movement for the blind is destined to push the institutions hard unless the latter can do more than they have to keep their pupils in the natural workaday world and not out of it during their impressionable years. What is education for efficiency? Is it not training for adjustment to life? If poor boys and girls whose parents have to drudge for a living are sent off to an institution where in their daily life they discover little if any relation between comfort and enjoyment on the one hand and personal effort and personal sacrifice on the other, what wonder that many acquire false notions of their relationship to society, notions that sometimes wreck their lives. We can all do more than we do to correct these notions, and I see no way to accomplish this so effectively as by insisting upon some measure of coöperative living while at school. In this paper I have dwelt upon housework as the simplest means. But there are others; only in our case we must have a care not to allow school pursuits to be too much interfered with; for the blind work more slowly than others, and it will not do to assume in their case, as we are told we can in that of the negroes at Hampton and Tuskegee, that those who must work all day for the privilege of attending night school are quite as successful in their studies as those who are able to go to school by day. Perhaps, however, as a writer on education claims, "the pedagogy of the future is to take its point of direction rather from sociology than psychology," and "if sociology is to control our educational policy we must try to give the child a consciousness of his place in the social order that we call the school." "We must place the manual and the domestic arts on an equal footing with book studies;" for, "no matter how good the school education, unless the interest and confidence of the people are enlisted so that they believe in the value of what is done, much of the labor goes for nothing." Finally, "it is desirable that children should learn to think, but it is indispensable that they should learn to work." Then let us teach our pupils the truth of these lines of Charles Kingsley:—

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work, and forced to do your best, will build in you temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and content, and a hundred things which the idle never know.

PERMANENT FUND FOR THOMAS STRINGER.

[This fund is being raised with the distinct understanding that it is to be placed under the control and care of the trustees of the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, and that only the net income is to be given to Tom so long as he is not provided for in any other way, and is unable to earn his living, the principal remaining intact forever. It is further understood, that, at his death or when he ceases to be in need of this assistance, the income of this fund is to be applied to the support and education of some child who is both blind and deaf and for whom there is no provision made either by the state or by private individuals.]

To the Trustees of Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind.

The undersigned, a Committee appointed to audit the accounts of the Treasurer, beg to report that they have employed Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Chartered Accountants, to make the examination; and transmit herewith their report dated to-day.

ALBERT THORNDIKE.
EZRA R. THAYER.

BOSTON, MASS., October 10, 1910.

Messrs. ALBERT THORNDIKE and EZRA R. THAYER, Auditors — Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind.

We have audited the accounts of William Endicott, Jr., Esq., Treasurer of the Institution, for the fiscal year ending August 31st, 1910, and have found that all income from investments and proceeds from the sale of securities during the year have been accounted for and that the donations, subscriptions and miscellaneous receipts as shown by the books have been deposited in bank to the credit of the Institution.

We have vouched all disbursements, verified the bank balances as at the end of the fiscal year and counted the stocks, bonds and notes receivable in the custody of the Treasurer on October 3d, 1910, which were found to agree with those called for by the books on August 31st, 1910, and

We certify that the attached statements of the Institution, Printing and Kindergarten Accounts, correctly set forth in summarized form the income and expenditures for the fiscal year ending August 31st, 1910.

The annual meeting of the corporation, duly summoned, was held to-day at the institution, and was called to order by the president, Hon. Francis Henry Appleton, at 3 P.M.

The proceedings of the last meeting were read and approved.

The annual report of the trustees was presented, accepted and ordered to be printed, together with the usual accompanying documents.

The annual report of the treasurer was presented, accepted and ordered to be printed.

Voted, That acts and expenditures, made and authorized by the Board of Trustees, or by any committee appointed by said Board of Trustees, be and are hereby ratified and confirmed.

The corporation then proceeded to ballot for officers for the ensuing year, and the following persons were unanimously elected: —

President. — Hon. Francis Henry Appleton.

Vice-President. — Amory A. Lawrence.

Treasurer. — William Endicott, Jr.

Secretary. — Edward E. Allen.

Trustees. — Francis Henry Appleton, Walter Cabot Baylies, Amory A. Lawrence, James A. Lowell, Mrs. James J. Putnam, George H. Richards, Richard M. Saltonstall, and Albert Thorndike.

The meeting then adjourned.

EDWARD E. ALLEN,
Secretary.

PERKINS INSTITUTION AND MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND,
BOSTON, October 11, 1911.

To the Members of the Corporation.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: — The most marked feature of the past year is the losses the school has sustained through the death or retirement of a number of men and women whose connection with the institution has helped create and keep alive its intellectual and moral atmosphere. This atmosphere is a distinctly recognizable thing. It is due, first, to the school's having been established during a period of great intellectual and moral activity in Boston, and brought within the influence of those conditions through Dr. and Mrs. Howe; and it is due, secondly, to the precept and example of the long list of rather remarkable officers, many of whom are only a memory, but some of whom we chronicle here.

Mrs. Howe died on the 17th of October, 1910, soon after the opening of this last school year. As the wife and widow of our first director and the mother-in-law of our second, she was more or less intimately connected with the institution for over half a century. She could always be counted on to further any of its interests and, as she grew older and less active, it became one of her dear privileges to do so. Her association with the institution has meant a very great deal to it; and we hold her memory as a precious possession.

Mr. George E. Hart, a former pupil of the school, died March 23, 1911. In 1878 he was made institution piano tuner and in 1895 master of its tuning department. He was a first-class tuner himself, was unusually clever in repair work, had the confidence of his boys, the ability to teach, and was an example of what he expected his pupils to accomplish. Though totally blind, upon the world outside the school he made an impression of cheery independence. His blindness was not thought of. It was said of him, "everywhere he went he was instinctively treated like a seeing man and an equal." He was an alumnus of whom the institution was proud; one to whom it could point its boys and say, "be like him."

Mr. John H. Wright, who died April 13, 1911, first came to the institution in 1872. From then until his death he had been in continuous and unremitting employment as an instructor of physical and manual training. He was alike efficient and tireless in service, always converting duty into opportunity. His boys say of him, "he was kind and he was just."

Miss Gazella Bennett, venerated by her girls during thirty-five years as principal of their department, resigned in June, 1911, being obliged to give up active work because of failing health and strength. The position of teacher of youth is one of great possibilities; and when this fact is realized by one combining both the ability and the character of this noble and devoted woman, the achievement can be of a high order. Such influence it has been Miss Bennett's privilege to bestow upon the school.

Miss Sarah E. Lane also resigned and left South

Boston at the close of the school year in June, 1911. She had been our librarian and proof reader for thirty years and treasurer of the Ladies' Auxiliary Society for seventeen. Last year she compiled a history of the Howe Memorial Press from records and from memory, corroborated by Mr. Reardon, who has been its manager from the beginning. Quietly unobtrusive, pleasantly accommodating, accurate, capable, loyal, Miss Lane has carried with her the gratitude of every one; for it was her pleasure to serve all.

Katie Fleming, who died at her home in Dorchester, April 16, 1911, aged seventy-six years, filled her position faithfully and efficiently. A poor working-girl, she lost her sight at the age of twenty and was taken from a hospital by Dr. Howe, not to be a pupil but a matron's helper. She proved so capable and trustworthy that after twelve years, during which she assisted in the laundry, she was put in charge of it and remained head laundress thirty-five years. She then retired on her savings, retaining most loving and grateful memories of the institution.

The pupils were invited to sing at Mrs. Howe's funeral and at the service at the grave; at memorial services held for her by the Women's Industrial Conference and the New England Women's Club; and at the great public memorial service held in her honor by the City of Boston. A selected choir sang under the direction of Mr. Gardiner on all these occasions. Our parlor orchestra of boys also had the honor of playing and accompanying the singing by the audience of patriotic songs on November 5 last at the Old South Meeting House when Hon. Curtis Guild, ex-Governor of Massachusetts, gave his delightful and instructive lecture on the origin and development of our national flag. Afterwards he was kind enough to repeat the lecture at the school. In preparation for his talk the teachers made tangible representations of all the flags he would describe, and explained them to the pupils individually. Knowing of their preparation and seeing their interested faces, the Governor continued his instructive talk, giving them two hours of such experience and pleasure as they seldom have.

The routine of school life was further enlivened by the rehearsals and presentation of "Scenes from A Midsummer Night's Dream." To Miss Jessica Langworthy, the teacher who trained the boys, and to others of our staff who helped her, credit is due for the success of the play, which, by the way, would have been impossible had not the boys thrown themselves eagerly into their parts.

During Miss Bennett's absence for a large part of the school year, her work was voluntarily assumed and successfully carried on by Miss Lilley, other teachers of the department assisting.

This, our first year of housework taught as a definite subject by a special teacher, fixed the course as part of the girls' curriculum and still further justifies the expense of the special buildings of the new Perkins Institution. Miss Davies, who inaugurated this work of which the director reported at length last year, resigned in June to accept a larger position in public school work. She had been connected with the institution four years. Her place will be hard to fill.

The usual intensive activities of the music department culminated in two events: the annual concert, and the graduation of our first class in pianoforte teaching. This class consisted of three advanced pupils who, for three years, were instructed practically in teaching seeing boys and girls under the guidance and control of our own teaching staff. They are well prepared for earning their living. Three other young men left during the year, having completed the course in pianoforte tuning and also the full course in chair caning. Success can be prophesied for them also. Two of the very recent graduates of the girls' school found occupation at once in making mattress ticks for our workshop. They board outside and are self-sustaining.

With money from the sale of some old orchestral instruments we purchased an Æolian Grand, together with twenty-seven rolls of standard orchestral music, to be used for instruction. To illustrate: we prepared the advanced pupils to hear Lohengrin, for which opera we bought tickets from the Maria Kemble Oliver fund, by playing on the Æolian portions of the orchestral preludes, supplemented by reading the story, singing the chief arias, etc. By no other means could we present the orchestral parts quite so satisfactorily. Mr. Gardiner reports that he hopes to buy more rolls for the Æolian this year and adds: "I believe that we could greatly enlarge this field of concert preparation by adding a pianoforte player of some kind, such instrument to be centrally located and made use of in connection with the Æolian Grand."

A peculiar interest centers in the Maria Kemble Oliver Fund, which has been placed in our hands for a stipulated purpose. Maria Kemble Oliver, born in Salem in 1832, the daughter of Henry Kemble and Sarah (Cook) Oliver, was a pupil of this school from 1847 to 1854. Her death occurred in August, 1872. She possessed unusual musical gifts and became a remarkably fine pianist. The fund which bears her name was established in October, 1908, by a member of her family who gave $5,000 as its nucleus. In January, 1909, he added $4,000 to the original gift with the understanding that the interest on the latter sum should be allowed to accumulate until the whole fund should amount to $10,000, a consummation the more quickly attained through the receipt of a check for $500 from the same benefactor as the contribution of other relatives and friends. It is understood that the income of the fund is to be used "in giving especially talented musical students at the Institution opportunities of attending the highest class of musical performances, but at the discretion of the Trustees one-half of the income of the whole Fund of $10,000 may be used in any direction to aid in the musical education of particularly gifted students of the Institution."

Through this endowment, tickets have been purchased for the use of the music students and their leaders, — this year in attending the Cecilia Society concerts, the opera Lohengrin, and a recital by Edward Baxter Perry. This income has also supplied new music rolls for the Æolian Grand, belonging to the school, which are used educationally as stated above.

We beg to express our deep appreciation of the interest in our institution which led to the establishment of this fund and our sense of the value which it has already been to the school and must increasingly prove in the coming years.

As our young men and women are graduated and depart other young people are always ready to advance and take their places. The yearly accessions from our lower school at Jamaica Plain are usually real additions, — good, wholesome children, well trained and instructed.

The deaf-blind pupils now in school are Louis Yott and Nellie Winitzky. Both are progressing normally. Though Tom Stringer continues to live at the institution, he goes daily to its workshop for adults, where he does chair caning and receives such wages as he can earn at piece work. He seems happy and contented.

The library is becoming more and more the circulation department of the Howe Memorial Press. This helps carry out the object for which the press was endowed, namely: —

Not only to provide the pupils of our institution with an adequate supply of embossed books and tangible apparatus, but also to render our publications accessible to all sightless readers in New England, and to aid, so far as it lies in our power, all other schools similar to our own in their efforts to increase and improve their educational facilities.

Besides making our own books we buy a few and get our quota of those provided by the government and made in Louisville, Kentucky. We are not limited, like some city and state libraries, to a definite circulating territory but can and do send anywhere, and can supply books in the still used embossed systems. The number of outside readers last year was 1342, a gain of 184 over the preceding year. This seems a justification, if one be needed, for printing also for the adult and general reader, as the Howe Memorial Press has been doing.

We made a rather unusual book this year when we embossed Ritchie's Primer of Sanitation, with such of its diagrams as could be reproduced in intelligible tangible form.

The Howe Memorial Press can do more work than it has funds for. This year we printed for the New York Association for the Blind four numbers of The Searchlight, a new periodical in Braille; and, for the New Church Society, at the expense of the Lydia Rotch foundation, the first edition of 100 copies of Emanuel Swedenborg: His Life and Extracts from his Theological Writings, for which Helen Keller wrote the introduction. We stand ready to do more of such work.

The printing office had four new and improved stereotype-making machines built in Boston under its supervision. One of these was sold, the others are in daily use.

In order to relieve our circulating department we are establishing a few traveling libraries for near-by public libraries; and, to make room for new books and to make the best use of our line-type books we are giving many of these away to those who will especially value them.

Sales of new books in Braille are increasing all the time. Six hundred and fifty-nine were sold this year; to individuals at cost and to institutions and libraries at less than cost. The institution and its blind readers are under continued obligations to such publishers as courteously allow us without payment to emboss their books.

Mr. Bryan, manager of our workshop for adults, has been pleased with the amount of work he has continued to secure. In fact, the shop has never been more prosperous. Its main reliance is upon mattresses, but even chairs come in at times in such numbers that some of them are brought over to the school shop to be caned by the pupils, who are thus able to earn something in their free time. These pupils also do the rush seating for the men's shop.

Partly through the field work of the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, the kindergarten is unusually full. The institution and the commission are mutually helpful. The commission tries to solve the problem of support for such of our ex-pupils as cannot get on alone, while the institution helps with suggestion and occasionally receives on trial and trains any recently blinded people young enough to want to learn a definite trade or occupation, or takes as pupils children with a good deal of sight who have been discovered by the commission to be unable to get on in public schools under average conditions.

The following are the statistics of the Home Teaching which the institution still conducts for the State: —

Number of teachers engaged in the work, 5; number of new pupils, 75; whole number of pupils during the year, 179; number of lessons given, 1,852; amount of money earned by their pupils, $594.

The home teachers have been brought into rather closer relations than usual with the workers of the commission through joint conferences held informally at Woolson House, Cambridge.

The 1911 convention of the American Association of Workers for the Blind was held in June last at Overbrook, Pa. We appropriated $100 towards the expenses of the ten of our staff who attended. The Overbrook buildings are ideally arranged for such a gathering. The interest in the school per se and the promise of the program brought together 300 people, undoubtedly the largest attendance at any convention held in America in the interests of the blind. All promises were fulfilled. Our people met others in the same lines of endeavor, observed how another great school does things and got help and impetus from the papers and discussions.

The system of accounts heretofore kept by our treasurer and director has been studied this season by certified public accountants, and a new, simplified and more modern system recommended for adoption.

No large bequests have been made to the institution this year, as was the case last year. Even the collections through the Ladies' Auxiliary Society have fallen off slightly, being $5,735.60. While we know this is due to the death of several generous subscribers, it is nevertheless regrettable, considering our large expenditure for new buildings.

The contract for our new plant at Watertown was signed December 31, 1910, and work was begun immediately. The last of August saw the power plant, director's house, and cottages of the girls' close roofed in and the main administration and school building well under way. The contractor confidently expects to have all of these and the cottages of the boys close roofed in before snow flies, so that inside work can go on all winter. There have been frequently more than 300 men at work, requiring the supervision of 3 "clerks of the works." There seems to us every reason so far to be satisfied with the progress of the undertaking, which, when finished, will be thoroughly suited to our purpose.

The number of blind persons registered by the Perkins Institution on the first of October, 1911, was 312, which is 11 less than the corresponding enrolment of the preceding year. This number includes 74 boys and 80 girls at the upper school in South Boston, 64 boys and 58 girls at the lower school in Jamaica Plain, 12 teachers and officers, and 24 adult workers in the workshop at South Boston. There have been 49 admitted and 60 discharged during the year.

Causes of Blindness of Pupils admitted during the School Year 1910-1911: — Ophthalmia neonatorum, 9; Keratitis, 3; Perforating ulcer, with sympathetic inflammation, 1; Leucoma, 1; Uveitis, with sympathetic inflammation, 1; Injury, with sympathetic inflammation, 4; Neuritis, 1; Atrophy of the optic nerve, 10; Phthisis bulbi, 1; Progressive myopia, 1; Congenital cataracts, 7; Microphthalmos, 1; Congenital amblyopia, 6; Unknown, 1.

Three deaths have occurred among the pupils of the institution: Ralph Nelson died of cerebral hemorrhage at his home in Malden, February 24, 1911; Geneva H. Spring, a member of the graduating class, died at the institution from perforating ulcer of the stomach, May 2, 1911; Emma B. Sullivan died of cerebro-spinal meningitis at her home in Pawtucket, R. I., August 27, 1911.

The general health of the pupils has been good; nevertheless, we have had 6 cases of measles, 6 of whooping cough, 1 of diphtheria, 1 of scarlet fever, and 2 of appendicitis, none of which proved fatal.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees, October 4, 1911, the following resolutions were passed:—

Whereas we have recently lost by death our colleague of many years, Samuel Lothrop Thorndike, Esq.,

Resolved, That we desire to express our appreciation of his services to the institution of which we are trustees. Mr. Thorndike first joined the Corporation of the Perkins Institution in 1879. In 1887 he became a trustee and remained so until his death, June 18, 1911, meanwhile filling admirably the following positions on the board: member of auditing committee, member of endowment committee for the kindergarten, member of the finance committee and auditor, chairman of the board of trustees from 1896 to 1909, when he declined re-election. Mr. Thorndike was ever ready to give the board legal and sympathetic advice and did so often during the thirty years of association with the institution. Such services are memorable: the community is to be congratulated whenever it has commanded them.

Resolved, That a copy of the above be spread upon the minutes of the board; and that a copy be sent to Mr. Thorndike's family.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR.

To the Board of Trustees.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—Five years ago I developed in my report the necessity of our removing to new and modern buildings, surrounded by ample grounds. As we are happily now on the eve of this beneficent change, I should like to refer to the long past of this institution in its Boston home, to review the principles, established by Dr. Howe and continued by Mr. Anagnos, on which it has been carried on and will continue to be carried on in its Watertown home, and to indicate what to my mind are the reasons for the public confidence the school has ever enjoyed in our community.

The name Perkins Institution has come naturally to mean our South Boston establishment. In leaving it we leave many treasured associations. The spiritual legacies of the noble and devoted people whose love and labors have made the institution what it is will go with us, and there new tangible reminders will speak daily the names of those we revere and follow.

The years between 1820 and 1830 in Boston were a seething time of many philanthropies. Among these schooling for the blind was arranged for, and fortunate was it that so practical a man as Dr. John D. Fisher had its beginnings in charge. Casting about for a director for the work, he came on Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, whose education as a physician, whose eight years' struggle for the oppressed in other lands and whose chivalric nature fitted him better than any one else that could have been found for the place. That Dr. Howe was a genius had been shown by his practical relief work in Greece, where he originated methods since recognized as sound in all charity work. In spite of his capacity for breaking a way, for walking where no man had blazed a path, he felt justified in using most of the money that had been raised for the new Boston venture he was about to direct, in order that he might observe in person similar work already established in Europe.

The result of his visits there was to make him feel that those foreign methods were not suited to our own democratic conditions. There he took warning. The blind abroad seemed to be helped each individually, — a sort of relief work; he believed they should be lifted as a class. There the individual was trained and cared for as a necessary dependent of the state. Here he thought the claims of an individual should never interfere with the good of the whole body of the blind, in school or out. He believed the blind pupil should be trained as nearly like his seeing brother as possible, and that then, like that brother, he should be put out equipped to make his way in open competition, and that, like him, he should become a citizen, sharing the privileges and responsibilities of that estate. This was his conception of duty to the blind and to the community. It was essentially the view of an optimist; and his motto for the school, "Obstacles are things to be overcome," emphasized this hopeful attitude.

The story of his finding a few blind children whom he instructed first in his father's house, afterwards in the mansion of Col. Perkins, generously given for the purpose, and of his removal in a few short years to the abandoned Mt. Washington House at South Boston, has been told many times. Dr. Howe originally considered this great hotel building, high on the peninsula, with open ground between it and the sea, an ideal home for the school. He was ever unsatisfied and unresting, however; the new day brought him new light, new truth. Before long he felt that institution housing was not best. He wanted separate roofs for groups of his blind pupils, thus insuring complete separation of boys and girls at all times, more contributory work on the part of pupils, closer communion between housemother, teachers and pupils, and a nearer approach to the normal family life. At one time he considered taking the institution from South Boston. In 1870 he added instead four cottages and a schoolhouse for his girls, but was never able to do the same for his boys.

Now what were the principles underlying his work? In his forty-third annual report, which he realized might be his last, he states these fully. He first studied his pupils from a physician's standpoint and found, as he says, that the blind, as a class, are not naturally so vigorous or alert as people with five senses. Therefore he felt that before they could advance they must be developed and energized physically. He got the pupils up early (at one time as early as five o'clock A.M., in the summer term) and, knowing that cold bathing was tonic for him and his own family, he insisted on it for his larger family, even while regretting that conditions under which it had to be done were originally far from ideal. Bathing in the sea he also expected daily of all during good weather. His school dietary was plain, but the food tasteful and plentiful. The pupils were to eat heartily and to burn the food up by fresh air and hard work. Even in the early days he had the short recess between each two periods of work, and he had gymnastic exercises, and the morning walk which continues to this day.

Thus, on the broad basis of physical strength and vitality he labored to build up the character which he knew had to be if his pupils were to hold their own in the world. His means were obviously intellectual training and guidance. However, he did not conduct his school like other schools but more from the sociological point of view. The common studies were by no means neglected, — on the contrary they were carefully taught; nevertheless, the training of the pupils morally, to be acquainted with the social graces, to be good, comfortable, helpful members of the institution families, — this he felt was more important than any amount of book knowledge, because it would the more insure their becoming good, comfortable members of society. He thus looked upon the institution as an extension of the home and anticipated the coming demand of sociology that educators should fit for society. Growing out of this condition in time arose our graduate associations, self-organized and self-promoted. These are of such character that they have been and are a powerful help to the institution.

The intent of the manual work of the school was not so much vocational as affording a wholesome occupation and as undoubtedly stimulating through showing individuals what they could do and make without sight. He was a firm believer in the dignity of labor. Housework or any manual pursuit was ranked as high as an intellectual one. Routine class work was (and still is) subject to interruption; for example, when the street sidewalks need to be cleaned of snow. He tolerated no social grades, teachers, housemothers, pupils being equal in rank. They lived together, ate together, worked together. Every teacher and housemother did her share of housework, and does so still.

He was progressive; in four years after opening his school we read that he had introduced piano tuning, in six years, that he had a gymnasium and a bowling alley. In 1840 he started the Perkins Institution workshop for adults (which efficient department still exists); for he had come to realize that some of his ex-pupils would never be able to get on alone in the world. Did not this foreshadow the present relief interest in the adult blind? He tried the experiment of having selected blind pupils taught in public or private schools, and he approved of it wherever feasible. While no musician himself, he seemed from the outset to appreciate fully the importance of the study of music, both as a means and as an end. He became interested in the prevention of blindness and early declared that, wherever possible, he had ascertained the cause of blindness in each pupil and made a record of it, more or less as we do it to-day. In short, he had a progressive, scientific mind and a far-seeing social insight. The Perkins Institution has ever been open to students of blindness and the blind. Neighboring colleges and schools have not failed to reap advantage from this fact. Why, indeed, should not an organization of the kind promote the advancement of knowledge?

He showed his social insight also not only in separating the adult blind from the young but in refusing to congregate the former, requiring them rather to board as individuals in the community. He was also careful to impress upon his workers that their product must sell on merit; and in order to make a market he opened his first salesroom in town as early as 1836.

The needs of the institution were never more than partially met by State appropriations; neither did private funds come in so largely that economy did not have to be practised. Dr. Howe and Mr. Anagnos alike considered a poor education an expensive affair, and the policy which they practised and made binding was that, aside from educational facilities, frugality must reign. They deemed this rather as a blessing than as a misfortune; and so it is, for who so need to cultivate habits of thrift as the blind?

For some fifty years after Haüy no real improvement was made in raised print for the blind or in the manner of printing it. But Dr. Howe was dissatisfied with it and with the books it appeared in. So, making his own type, he began printing at once and within a few years could truly say that his press had issued more and better books for finger reading than all the other presses in the world. He continued to print as long as he lived; that is, whenever he had the money for it, for this was always privately subscribed and was never taken from the general funds of the institution. After his death Mr. Anagnos succeeded magnificently in endowing the Howe Memorial Press, which has been producing books uninterruptedly ever since.

Most of the things I have mentioned are part of every one of our American institutions to-day, but they were original with Dr. Howe. His friend and biographer, Frank Sanborn, fittingly characterizes him as a "great first cause." But besides these tangible things there is here the Perkins Institution atmosphere, and this was also first created by Dr. Howe. He not only labored hard but made his teachers do the same. He was able to get excellent men and women for assistants and to inspire them with his own spirit of tireless devotion. In a letter he tells of how little he should be able to carry on the institution if he could have only head and hand service. Those only who have been acquainted with the school for many years can know the long line of teachers and officers who gave their hearts and sometimes their lives to the cause and whose character is reflected in the grown-up boys and girls whom we proudly point to as our alumni and alumnae.

During Dr. Howe's lifetime the influence of the institution was widespread. He has himself reported appearing before seventeen different legislatures in an effort to induce them to provide for the education of the blind, and at least nine schools were started as the direct results of this campaign. When Sir Francis Campbell, then the recent director of music at Perkins, was starting his Royal Normal College for the Blind in London, Dr. Howe generously gave up several of his very best teachers to help him, considering that important enterprise an American one on trial in a foreign land, and needing the best of support. His reports, struck off at white heat, were charged with interest and were widely read on both sides of the Atlantic. His forty-third report, the supplement to which was reprinted in a separate pamphlet, must always remain a source book of inspiration for the profession. He tried to keep in the public eye through frequent exhibition, also by keeping the papers interested in the school; and even to-day the Perkins Institution can generally depend on having the press give accurate and sympathetic reports of its doings. It was one of the Doctor's beliefs that no institution can rise higher than the public opinion of it. Whatever he began was so original and so well done that everybody came to place the greatest confidence in him and in whatever he undertook. Naturally, then, the Perkins Institution, representing his work for the blind, — his really chief work, — and attracting, as it did after the teaching of Laura Bridgman, world-wide interest, came to be a great source of pride to the community.

After his teaching of Laura Bridgman, he woke to find himself a hero; his reputation became world-wide. When he visited Europe in 1843 he was lionized. Dickens, Kossuth, and many another foreigner visited the institution at South Boston. Gov. Andrew, Longfellow, Prescott, Sumner, Horace Mann, Dorothea Dix, Frank Sanborn, — to mention a few, — were his close friends. Several of these, and Boston's Brahmins generally, — were on his board of trustees. Mr. John S. Dwight, foremost music critic of Boston, visited Dr. Howe and Mr. Anagnos often, both as friend and member of their boards. He both made helpful suggestions and edited a book of hymns, which was embossed for the use of the students. Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, also visited Mr. Anagnos and showed a keen desire for information in regard to the workings of the establishment and a deep interest in what he saw. Though never caring for society himself, the most exclusive circles of the city were open to Dr. Howe. It is said that he was the only abolitionist whose sentiments did not close these doors upon him. Mrs. Howe naturally widened his circle of friends. She was eminently social and was a great addition to any party. All this was obviously a great help to the institution. After Dr. Howe's death this social status was studiously kept alive by Mr. Anagnos.

Mr. Anagnos, who loved and revered Dr. Howe, at once became his loyal understudy. Having lived in the atmosphere created by the Doctor, he quickly found himself in complete sympathy with the fundamental principles under which the institution had achieved its reputation. Of the Perkins Institution, then, there may be said what cannot be said of any other American institution; namely, that it has had practically one continuous policy for over three-quarters of a century. Nevertheless, Mr. Anagnos grew with the times and modified the curriculum where circumstances required. He developed the kindergarten for the blind in separate houses at Jamaica Plain, which is a splendid monument to his memory. His scholarly mind could not but create an atmosphere of its own. His teachers felt that they must keep abreast of the times with their work. In fact, it became quite the custom for some of them to seek for themselves advanced courses under the best instructors of Boston and Cambridge, in order to bring back inspiration to their classes. The kindergarten, manual training, sloyd, Swedish gymnastics and corrective gymnastics, which we have, grew out of such progressive devotion. Mr. Anagnos often characterized this as consecration, a word which describes his own attitude to his work. Through him the pupils, and the teachers, too, enjoyed the benefits of Lowell lectures and of concerts without number. When attending these functions all invariably paid their own carfares, which has engendered appreciation, independence, and self respect. Public lecturers, musicians, and literary people frequently performed or lectured at the school, being glad to make this contribution to the cause.

Mr. Anagnos was a collector. Our large and full educational museum and the unique gathering of books on the blind are his work and form a real contribution to the educational equipment of the school. He kept the institution before the public by receptions, exhibitions, and by indefatigably writing in its behalf. Finally, he developed a genius for raising money, to which fact, more than to anything else, do we now owe the possibility of our approaching reconstruction.

Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD E. ALLEN,

Director.

BOSTON, MASS., November 15, 1911.

To the Trustees of Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind.

The Committee appointed by you to audit the accounts of the Treasurer, beg to report that they have employed Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Chartered Accountants, to make the examination; and transmit herewith their report dated to-day.

ALBERT THORNDIKE,
For the Committee.

BOSTON, MASS., November 15, 1911.

Messrs. ALBERT THORNDIKE and EZRA R. THAYER, Auditors — Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind.

We have audited the accounts of William Endicott, Jr., Esq., Treasurer of the Institution, for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1911, and have found that all income from investments and proceeds from the sale of securities during the year have been accounted for and that the donations, subscriptions and miscellaneous receipts as shown by the books have been deposited in bank to the credit of the Institution.

We have vouched all disbursements, verified the bank balances as at the end of the fiscal year, and counted the stocks, bonds and notes receivable in the custody of the Treasurer on October 26, 1911, which were found to agree with those called for by the books, and
